AIR HEROES DESCRIBE FLIGHT

FRANCE WOULD PAY HEAVILY ON DEBT PRINCIPAL

Settlement Will Be a Test of Coolidge.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP PARIS, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The debt proposal which Finance Minister Caillaux is understood to have prepared for submittal to the American commission in Washington contemplates immediate steps by France to reduce the principal of her account.

JOSEPH CAILLAUX.

Caillaux's program would offer a substantial payment in 1926, with increasing amounts annually during each of the next twenty years.

The French government's proposal will not be tied up with reparation payments nor will it be conditioned upon the tentative agreement recently entered into with Great Britain.

What will be the extent of the installments is the most closely guarded secret of the French mission. Indications are it will be substantial enough to interest Secretary Mellon in his calculation of revenue for 1926 and thereafter. The offer will represent the French view of the utmost France is able to pay.

REAL TEST FOR COOLIDGE

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The terms on which the war debts owed the United States are settled will furnish the first important test of the capacity of the Coolidge administration and doubtless will exercise a profound influence on the outcome of the congressional election next year and the political future of the President.

The administration now has arrived at the most critical juncture in its career. The French commission is to arrive Wednesday to negotiate a funding of the $4,000,000,000 debt. Then will come the Italians to obtain the terms on which they are to pay off the $2,000,000,000 they owe us.

Congress will meet in December and will pass on the settlements recommended by the debt funding commission. If congress approves the settlements, they will stand. If congress disapproves any proposed settlement, it will fall.

White House Responsible.

The terms in each case depend on the decision of President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and congress will regard the administration responsible for each settlement.

The President has gained in prestige because the debtors are eager to settle, whereas a few months ago they were viewing their obligations as "political" debts which it would be unnecessary to pay.

Mr. Coolidge caused these debtors to revise their behavior. He did it quietly. He merely remarked that he [illegible] American bankers had better not float any more loans to governments or to the nationals of governments which had failed to make any arrangements for paying their debts to the United States.

They Respond with Alacrity.

It soon became apparent that Mr. Coolidge had touched the most sensitive of all nerves, the pocket nerve. These European debtors had been borrowing freely in Wall street to bolster up their unbalanced budgets and suddenly they found themselves cut off. Not long thereafter Belgium spoke up with a request for settlement. It [illegible] that Belgium wanted to borrow $10,000,000 in Wall street. Next came Italy, which hustled its ambassador down to the treasury to tell Mr. Mellon they were in a hurry to settle. They also were in a hurry to get a [illegible] fund established in Wall street to bolster up the lira and they got it after promising to settle their [illegible].

The French also had a change of [illegible]. They hadn't had a loan from Wall street in some time and were [illegible] for another. Czecho-Slovakia [illegible] was eagerly making signs that she wanted to pay up.

So the President made the supreme [illegible] of his administration. It now remains to be seen whether [illegible] will be made more resplendent or will be dimmed by the settlements effected.

KILLS WORSHIPER IN ROW OUTSIDE OF SYNAGOGUE

Morris B. Stein, 60 years old, 3856 West Congress street, was fatally injured last night when he was struck in front of the Hagro Anshe Vilno synagogue, 508 South Springfield avenue, by William Hanrahan, 4017 West Harrison street. He died a short time later in the Mount Sinai hospital.

MORRIS STEIN.

Stein was waiting outside the synagogue for the services to start, when Hanrahan, said to have been intoxicated, approached with two other men. Witnesses told the police that Hanrahan tried to enter the place of worship and that Stein protested. Hanrahan then struck him. Stein fell, his head striking on the sidewalk, and fractured his skull.

Hanrahan was arrested on a charge of murder and locked up in the Fillmore street station. His companions, both of whom were sober, witnesses said, fled after the trouble.

Coolidge Just Escapes Auto; Arrest Driver

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—President Coolidge narrowly escaped being struck by an automobile while taking his customary walk in the downtown section tonight. The driver of the car was arrested on a charge of violating traffic regulations.

The President had stepped from the curb at H street and Jackson place, a block from the White House, when the auto, cutting the corner, was said to have borne down on him so suddenly that he was saved from being struck only by the quickness of a secret service man, who seized his arm and drew him back.

Traffic Cop Arrests Driver.

Another of the four secret service men with the President jumped on the running board of the car and caused the arrest of the driver when he came to a traffic policeman.

The motorist gave the name of Nathan D. Smith of Baltimore. He was charged with cutting corners and failing to give right of way to pedestrians. Smith was released on furnishing $3,500 bond for his appearance in traffic court tomorrow.

Coolidge Not Upset.

Information of Mr. Coolidge's narrow escape and the resulting arrest of Smith came from the police. The President apparently thought so little of the incident that attachés at the White House tonight had not even heard of it.

GIRL SHEDS LIGHT ON MISSING JAIL RECORDS AT QUIZ

Miss Bella Monroe, former secretary to Capt. Wesley Westbrook, recently dismissed warden of the county jail, was questioned for several hours Saturday afternoon by Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman, it was learned last night.

Sheriff Hoffman, when reached late last night, refused to disclose the information received from Miss Monroe, but intimated that it was of great importance. Whether or not the girl's story bore out the alleged $20,500 graft story he refused to say, but admitted that her story had thrown some light on the missing jail records of Terry Druggan and Frank Lake.

Two Stitches in Heart Save Boy; Fell on Scissors

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Two stitches in the heart of Melvin Jones, age 5, saved his life today after he had fallen on the points of a pair of scissors. A quantity of blood for a transfusion was supplied by his father.

WOMAN SHOOTS SELF TO DEATH DURING QUARREL

Following a family quarrel yesterday, Mrs. Arthur Holt, 50 years old, shot herself three times in the abdomen at her home in Fox Lake. She died a few minutes later, before a physician could reach her.

Sheriff Ahlstrom and Coroner John L. Taylor of Lake county instituted an investigation. At the Holt home they found Mrs. Holt's husband, who is 35 years old, and her daughter, Mrs. Clara Marcq.

Mrs. Marcq said that she and her husband, visiting her mother, had gone out in the afternoon and returned late after stopping at a roadhouse. This aroused the ire of Mrs. Holt. The daughter retorted sharply and the mother seized a revolver. Mrs. Marcq said she ran into a clothes closet, thinking her own life was in danger. Three shots were fired, she declared.

When she and Holt ran into the room they found Mrs. Holt lying on the floor. Holt corroborated the story. The sheriff took Mrs. Marcq and Holt into custody pending the inquest today. Coroner Taylor said that there were bruises on Mrs. Holt's head that he did not think were made by her fall after she was shot. Mrs. Marcq's husband left for Chicago before the shooting. He is being sought.

ASK AWARD FOR HEROINE, 16, WHO RESCUED CHILD

Steps were being taken yesterday to recommend for a bravery award Betty Van Arsdale, 16 years old, 6863 Chappel avenue, who on Saturday rescued from the lake at the Jackson park breakwater 8 year old Margaret Heckler, 6953 Vernon avenue, who had sunk to the bottom. Miss Van Arsdale, a junior in University high school, then revived the child with first aid measures.

Margaret and her parents, with several friends, were on the breakwater when the child, losing her balance in throwing a ball, fell in. A woman jumped in, but got into difficulties and barely managed to save herself. The screams of the distracted parents, who were unable to swim, were heard by Miss Van Arsdale, and she quickly swam to the child's aid. Robert L. Van Arsdale, insurance broker, is the heroine's father.

WIRE RIPS TOP OFF SEDAN; TWO WOMEN KILLED

Chicagoans Die in Michigan Crash.

Hanging unseen in the darkness across the West Michigan pike, four miles north of Whitehall, Mich., early yesterday, a heavy telephone guy wire brought instant death to two Chicago women when the automobile in which they were riding at a speed of 35 miles an hour crashed into it.

EDNA YOUNG.

The women, Mrs. William B. Young 45 years old, and her daughter, Edna, 20 years old, of 3617 West 64th place, were asleep in the rear seat when the wire tore the top off the large sedan. Mrs. Young was sleeping with her head on her daughter's shoulder. The wire caught them both under their chins, snapping their necks and fracturing their skulls.

Others Escape Injury.

Hayden Young, 19 years old, a son of Mrs. Young, and Joseph Sucki, fiancé of Miss Young, saved their lives by ducking their heads as the wire swept over the front seat. Mrs. Young's son, William, 14 years old, and grandson, Hayden Mitchell, 5 years old, were asleep in the bottom of the car and escaped injury.

The heavy wire had been thrown across the road as the result of another accident only two or there minutes before the Young car came speeding on to the scene through the darkness. James Alberts and William Wainswright, both 18 years old, of Muskegon, were traveling the highway on their way to an Oceana county farm to hunt when their car skidded from the pavement and crashed into a telephone pole.

The pole, rotten at the base, snapped off and swung to the ground, suspending the wire across the highway.

Alberts and Wainwright, uninjured, were untangling themselves from the wreckage of their car when the machine bearing the Young party came along.

Death Instantaneous.

Although the top was torn from the coach, the force of the crash failed to stop the Young machine. Sucki, who was driving, stopped his topless car, turned around, and drove frantically back to Whitehall, where a physician said death had been instantaneous for the two women.

Crazed with grief, Sucki had to be restrained from taking his own life when informed the women were dead. In the darkness of the street below a Whitehall merchant heard the commotion and saw a night watchman take hold of Sucki. Believing he was witnessing a robbery, the merchant was about to shoot when he was apprised of the facts.

The five members of the Young family and Mr. Sucki were on their way to Hart, Mich., to visit Mrs. Young's daughter, Mrs. Hazel Patterson. They were nearing the end of their journey when the accident occurred. Mr. Young, the husband and father, who is a can maker for Armour & Co., remained at home in Chicago. Mrs. Patterson, who was so overcome as to be unable to give relatives at home details of the accident, is bringing the bodies to Chicago, following the inquest held by Coroner Tilden Clock of Muskegon.

One Killed Here.

One death here yesterday raised the 1925 county toll to 550.

An unidentified woman about 50 years old carrying a funeral wreath was fatally injured when struck by an automobile yesterday afternoon as she alighted from a car at the entrance to Oakwoods cemetery, 67th street and Greenwood avenue.

The driver of the automobile, Miss Louise Starck, 8140 Eberhart avenue, took the woman to the Jackson Park hospital, where she was pronounced dead. Woodlawn police released Miss Starck.

Wolff Tells of Grafting in Goods of Dead

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Valparaiso, Ind., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Gold watches of the dead turned to cheap nickel in passing through the Chicago coroner's office, and that explains the summary dismissal of Chief Deputy Coroner Charles Fitzner, according to Coroner Oscar Wolff, who was interviewed today at his farm near here.

Previously the coroner had contented himself with a simple statement declaring that for the good of the service he was discharging Fitzner and two others, Walter C. Yunker, secretary to the coroner, and E. M. Cleaves, colored, custodian of deceased persons' effects.

Today Coroner Wolff made public his record, compiled from official documents, of what happened to the watch of Harry Palmer, subject of a coroner's inquest.

A police receipt from the Twenty-seventh district station shows under Fitzner's signature that he received from Policemen J. Hamilton and J. Tracy an Elgin gold watch, number 6,682,612, the property of Palmer. This watch, according to Coroner Wolff, was placed in a strong box to which none but Fitzner had a key.

Has Other Evidence, He Says.

The records of the public administrator, however, show that on July 6, 1925, Fitzner turned over to that office a cheap Ingersoll nickel watch, saying it was Palmer's, the coroner said. This one case justifies Fitzner's discharge, Coroner Wolff said, adding, "But there are many other things which led me to let him out." The coroner refused to disclose his other evidence pending a thorough inquiry, which he is to begin today when he returns to his office in Chicago.

Several weeks ago Chief Fitzner conducted an auction sale without letting the coroner have any knowledge it was to be held, it is said.

The proceeds of the sale of the effects of 400 persons was only $224, it was said. The complete belongings of many of the dead persons were sold for less than a dollar, it was reported.

Orders Explanation of Sale.

Coroner Wolff, learning of the sale and discovering the proceeds were much smaller than in past years, summoned Fitzner to explain. It was reported that Fitzner stated there were only three gold watches in the 400 estates.

The law requires that the coroner's office hold revolvers indefinitely when they are found in a decedent's effects, but it was reported only a third of the number so received are in the coroner's vault.

Asked why he had discharged Cleaves, the coroner hesitated and then said he held Cleaves responsible for the contents of the vault, of which he was the custodian, and that evidence indicated he had been lax in this duty.

Mr. Wolff would not enlarge upon this statement. He refused entirely to comment on the discharge of his secretary, Yunker, and repeated his first statement that it was for the good of the service.

CLEAVES DISCUSSES CHARGES.

E. M. Cleaves, at his home, 3235 Vernon avenue, said last night no reason for his summary discharge had been given by Coroner Wolff.

Cleaves said he knew little regarding the accusations against former Chief Fitzner. As to revolvers, they were kept in the custody of Fitzner and were not put into the vault, he declared.

The sale of 400 estates several weeks ago produced more than $400, and not $224, he said, and was a satisfactory total compared with other sales. Property of deceased persons held by the coroner is rarely of value, being mostly little other than clothing, which is usually in such condition that it is worth little.

Charles H. Fitzner, former chief deputy coroner, and Walter Yunker, former secretary to the coroner, who also were discharged by Mr. Wolff, could not be reached last night.

Girl, Held by Undertow, Drowns in Lake Storm

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Gale-swept Lake Michigan late today claimed the life of one bather at Highland Park and endangered a score of others who narrowly escaped death in the undertow. Bernice McKeyne, 16, of Grand Rapids was drawn beneath the surface when she, and her sister were knocked down by a wave. Spectators rescued the sister but Bernice was drowned.

Six of Family in Auto Killed by Electric Car

Dayton, O., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Six persons, all members of one family, were killed near New Lebanon tonight when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by an interurban car. The dead are: Noah Routough, 36; Lizzie Routough, 34, his wife; Virginia Routough, 12, a daughter, and three sons, Robert, 10; Paul, 8, and Clinton, 6.

HAWAII FLYERS GIVE OWN STORY OF AIR-SEA TRIP

Drifted Nine Days at Mercy of Ocean.

Commander John Rodgers, Lieut. Byron J. Connell, Radio Operator Otis G. Stantz and the two other members of the intrepid crew of the naval seaplane PN-9 No. 1 have written a joint detailed story of their experiences in the recent San Francisco-Hawaii flight, in which failure of their gasoline supply left them adrift on the Pacific for nine days, when, after having been given up for lost, they were picked up by a submarine off the island of Kauai.

The story, transmitted by wireless from Honolulu, whither the rescued men were taken, covers every phase of the flight from its inception, through the disaster which halted it and the resultant days of peril, to the rescue and triumphant arrival in the Hawaiian capital. Commander Rodgers begins the story and his comrades, in turn, carry it on to its conclusion.

The Tribune prints today the first installment of the narrative, in which the commander deals with the construction of the seaplane and the difficulties attending it.

Succeeding chapters, to be published daily this week, tell of further trials, the beginning of the flight itself, the forced descent to the ocean and the nine days of drifting with hope of succor sometimes dimmed but never extinguished.

The whole comprises the story of the most thrilling recent adventures in American naval and aircraft annals.

BY COMMANDER JOHN RODGERS.

Commander West Coast Hawaii Flight Unit.
[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times. By wireless to The Chicago Tribune and the New York Times.]

HONOLULU, Sept. 21.—As the greatest distance over the ocean, without intervening land, is from the west coast of the United States to the Hawaiian islands, this voyage by air has been for many years the ambition of naval aviators.

There have been land planes of sufficient flying radius to make the jump, but the navy department would not consider their use in this project. It was necessary, therefore, to await the development of a seaplane with sufficient gasoline capacity to travel 2,100 miles without a stop. A year ago the best distance made by a seaplane was 1,200 miles, and it looked at the time as though the production of a seaplane capable of making the trip was a thing of the distant future.

Uses 12 Cylinder Engine.

In a shorter time than could be seen, however, a light twelve cylinder engine, using a reduction gear which turned a propeller at half speed of the engine, was produced by the Packard company thus permitting the engine to develop a high horse power to be transmitted to large and efficient propellers. During the same time there was developed a hull of duralumin, which is much lighter and stronger than any old wooden hull.

The combination of these two new factors permitted the building of a seaplane which proved to have a radius of over 1,900 miles in still air. This was considered by all to be ample to make the Hawaiian islands in the high favorable winds which can almost certainly be counted on between the west coast of the United States and Hawaii.

Description of the PN-9 Type.

The navy department built at their aircraft factory in Philadelphia two such planes. These planes were two-engine planes, one engine on either side of the center line. The great advantage of this type of plane is that when one engine stops the other is used with full efficiency because it is on the center line and pulls the plane straight ahead, whereas in the navy department type of plane when an engine on one side stops the engine on the other side pulls the plane around in a circle, and this tendency to turn must be offset by a hard-over with the rudder, causing an additional drag, which plainly reduces the flying efficiency of the machine.

The disadvantage of the tandem type is that when both motors are running the stern propellers work in the slip stream produced by the forward propellers, with the result that the machine's efficiency is decreased, whereas each engine of the wing type machine works in its own air. Furthermore, a seaplane must have good maneuvering qualities on the water, otherwise, in taking off or after it lands, it is liable to destruction by contact with vessels and buoys in a harbor. A machine with an engine on each side, like a twin-screw propeller ship, handles and turns much more readily than one with both its propellers on the center line.

I understand that many of Admiral

HAWAII FLYERS TELL STORY OF FLIGHT AND NINE DAYS' DRIFTING IN OCEAN

Moffett's advisers were skeptical as to the capabilities of the tandem engine machine, but he himself was convinced that it had possibilities and ordered one which was to have been finished last May.

In the spring of this year it was decided by the navy department to attempt the Hawaiian flight with the two navy planes built by the aircraft factory and designated as PN-9s. P stands for patrol, N for navy, and 9 for type. The tandem engine plane was to join in the flight if it could be completed in time. This was designated as PB-1, P meaning patrol, B standing for Boeing, the name of the designer and builder, and 1 for the first of this type.

Picking the Personnel.

These three planes formed the material basis of the flight and answered the question of material. The next question was to get the personnel to man the planes. There has been much dissatisfaction in the past among naval aviators because personnel has been chosen from those who were closest to Washington. The reason ascribed by aviators in general was that these men were on the ground and had the ear of the department and were preferred on that account rather than for their ability and experience.

As a matter of fact, these men had been chosen in the past not because they were near Washington, but because they were near the planes which they were to fly during their development, and, whereas their general experience and ability may not have been as great as that of some of the other officers, they were thought to be better qualified on account of their familiarity with the special job in hand.

How Moffett Named Men.

On the occasion of the Hawaiian flight Admiral Moffett announced he would avoid such a cause of dissatisfaction by adopting the policy of having the officers chosen from the two major airplane units operating with the fleet. The commandant of the aircraft squadron scouting fleet, whose base is on the Atlantic coast, chose the personnel for the PN-9s, while the commandant of the aircraft squadron of the battle fleet, whose base is on the Pacific coast, chose the personnel for the PB-1. The command and management of the whole flight was placed under Capt. H. E. Moses, commander of the aircraft squadron of the battle fleet, would use his organization in support of the flyers.

Many Wanted Chance.

Thus selections were made from practically all the naval aviators at the time engaged in actual flying with the fleet. Capt. Moses selected Lieutenant Commander Strong to command the PB-1 and Lieut. Davidson and Lieut. Botta to go with him. Capt. Yarnell selected Lieut. Snody, Lieut. Connell, Lieut. Gavin, and me for the PN-9s, and directed me to select the enlisted personnel.

I selected Chief Aviation Pilots Pope and Craver; Aviation Pilot (first class) Bowlin; Chief Radioman O. G. Stantz, First Class Radioman Allen, and Chief Machinist's Mate (aviation) Sutter, who was especially trained with the new type of engines built by the Packard company. In this connection, it may be noted that practically the entire personnel of officers and men of the navy desired to make the flight, and there were many heartburnings and much criticism of the selections.

Set Up New Planes...

A few days later both PN-9s arrived from Philadelphia and work was immediately started in setting up the planes and making such changes as had been found necessary in the previous flying of one of these planes. The command of one of the PN-9s devolved upon me as the senior officer, in addition to my duty as commander of the unit, and the command of the other PN-9 devolved upon Lieut. Snody by virtue of his rank.

As the best ship of a command since time immemorial in the history of the navy has been selected as the flagship, I considered it my duty as well as right to choose what I considered the better of the two planes as my own, but I gave to Lieut. Snody a free hand in the matter of the selection of his crew. The PB-1, building at Seattle, was too far away for me to give much assistance to Lieut. Commander Strong, and he worked independently.

Nevertheless, as commanding officer of the unit it was necessary for me to supervise all the work in connection with the PN-9s and the training of the crews. This work as unit commander absorbed my time and energy, and the work of training the crew of my plane devolved almost entirely upon the second in command, Lieut. Byron J. Connell.

Wilbur Visits "Ships."

Secretary Wilbur himself made us a visit and inspected the planes and showed great interest and understanding of what we were trying to do. It was most gratifying to us to have a secretary with a naval training and one who could understand and talk our language. On his departure he radioed to the bureau of aeronautics authorizing any overtime work that might be necessary, and stating that no effort or expense should be spared to get the planes ready for the flight on time.

Except for the fact that the secretary alone could authorize overtime work, his telegram was unnecessary, because the bureau of aeronautics and, in fact, every one in the navy concerned was already bending every effort to give us what we wanted in time for the flight. When we landed in San Diego on the twenty-first of June we had two months and one week in which to make our preparations. We knew we would be very busy all this time in order to get ready, but did not realize fully how very busy we would be.

One of the decisions we had to make was whether to start from San Diego or San Francisco. Capt. Moses directed me to advise him definitely as to which was the better place. The navy experts were somewhat divided. The cities of San Diego and San Francisco were absolutely divided, both showing a surprising amount of interest in their desire to have the flight start from their respective towns. From the first I was inclined to San Francisco, because of its shorter distance in actual miles. On the other hand, it was believed by many persons that the air distance (due to more favorable winds) would be shorter from San Diego.

In order to be sure that I made no mistake in my advice to Capt. Moses on this point, I flew to San Francisco with the unit. Upon our arrival, much to our surprise, we were met by the mayor of the city and the public spirited citizens of San Francisco, Gen. Mullaly, as head the diamond jubilee committee, a brigade of newspaper men and photographers. This turnout showed me for the first time the amount of interest that was being taken in the flight by the people of the United States.

Consulted Weather Bureau.

Not satisfied, however, with the advice of the citizens, we flew to all points of San Francisco bay, made trial takeoffs, and consulted the chief of the weather bureau about the details in regard to the weather conditions. Finally, all of us decided unanimously in favor of San Francisco, and I radioed to Capt. Moses advising him that the start should be made from there, but I requested that the date of starting should not be changed.

In this connection it may be a matter of general interest to know that a seaplane will carry in the air a much heavier load than she will take off with from the water. The capacity of a seaplane, therefore, unlike that of a landplane, is limited by her ability to get into the air. This is due to the resistance caused by the friction of the water and to the suction which holds the hull down even after the plane has reached its flying speed. The matter of the take-off, therefore, for a heavily loaded seaplane is of primary importance.

Advantages of San Pablo Bay.

In order to be sure to get away, we wanted to have strong southeast winds which would increase the air speed of the plane while it was running on shallow water, which would form a firmer roadbed, so to speak, and a favorable tide, which also would increase the air speed by an amount equal to the speed of the tide. We needed, also, a long run on the water and then a clear run ahead in the air, because a heavily loaded plane gains altitude very slowly and is not able to turn to the right or left for some distance after the take-off, due to her lack of altitude.

All of these conditions could be found combined in San Pablo bay, which forms the northern part of San Francisco bay. The fear of the dense fogs reputed to be met constantly in the Golden Gate was found to be a bugaboo, because, although these fogs do occasionally exist during parts of some days, ordinarily it is sufficiently clear to make a passage through the gate perfectly safe for a seaplane.

Radiators Cause Dark Moment.

About this time, July 26, both PN-9s were ready to fly. We flew them for an hour. Their performance was satisfactory, but to our great surprise and greater concern all four radiators leaked like sieves, due to the failure of improvements which had been made in them since their last trial. The aircraft factory had two new radiators on the way, but we needed two more, and the Navy department said it would be impossible for the aircraft factory to build them and get them out in time for the flight, but authorized their purchase wherever they could be obtained.

It was a dark moment, for none of us had any idea where airplane radiators could be obtained on the Pacific coast, until somebody suggested the Douglas company, builders of the world cruisers. Douglas was telephoned to, and we all heaved a great sigh of relief when he said he would have the radiators built by the man who built them for the world cruisers and have them done in plenty of time for the flight, and he kept his word.

Prior to the arrival of the Douglas radiators, however, the spares from the navy aircraft factory arrived, and these were installed in the PB-1. That was the end of our radiator troubles. These radiators have not leaked one drop of water since their installation.

When the PN-9s became operative, our unit consisted of five planes, two PN-7 training planes and one additional training plane, as well as the two PN-9s. About this time three destroyers reported for duty in connection with the flight and training for radio compass work. I had to build my organization up to take care of these conditions, and I telegraphed to Capt. Moses that the administration of the unit was more than I could take care of and attend to my duties as pilot of the PN-9 No. 1. He immediately boarded a destroyer and came to San Diego with his staff to take personal charge of all administrative matters.

Worked Day and Night.

This was early in August. By the time he reached there the ground organization consisted of twelve officers and sixty men. This, it should be understood, was in addition to the organization and facilities supplied by the air station. The whole outfit was working like Trojans, both day and night. Sheaves of radios were sent and received. The mail was sky high, filled with matters of importance, and tons of letters from curio collectors to be carried to Hawaii in the seaplane.

I make particular point of these facts not as a complaint that we had more than we could attend to, but to endeavor to convey an idea of the tremendous amount of energy and expense which must be put forth in order to get two planes ready to go on a long flight to sea. I have known for a long time that the defense of the country by airplane will not be a cheap matter, but never before had it been so forcibly impressed upon me.

The arrival of Capt. Moses, of course, simplified matters for me, and we worked entirely in harmony. He not only lifted the details of administration from my shoulders and protected me from publicity seekers, but I found his mature judgment to be of great assistance. I was sorry I had not asked him to come sooner. The upshot of it all was that on the 26th of August the PN-9s were ready to leave for San Francisco.

Fly to Golden Gate.

The PB-1, much to my surprise, and due to what must have been a Herculean effort on the part of her crew and her manufacturers, was able to leave on the preceding day. She was forced to land, however, at the entrance of the Strait of San Juan de Fuca, due to a break in the little oil line which connected the oil pressure gauge with the oil system. The plane was deluged with a flood of oil, and to continue running the motor would have meant the total loss of her oil and the ruination of the plane. This motor was therefore cut out and plane was flown for fifteen miles w one engine to a safe landing, thus d onstrating the great advantage of tandem engine system.

The PN-9s could not have sustain themselves in the air for this distan under similar circumstances with o engine.

This oil leak was repaired and plane proceeded on the following beating the PN-9 No. 3 to San F cisco. PN-9 No. 3, Lieut. Snody command and Lieut. Gavin second command, and carrying Capt. Mo went through to San Francisco wi out incident. My plane, the PN-9 No. was forced to land to repair a s oil leak.

The three planes arrived on the set at the Crissy army field, which seaplane facilities, under the cliffs the Presidio. This field and its tes were turned over entirely to navy. The army gave us every ance possible, and I may say here all through our preparations for flight the army air service coöpe fully and most generously with any and all occasions.

GARLANDS REWARD FOR HEROISM

Commander John Rodgers, captain of the PN9-1, as he appeared just before he left Kauai for Honolulu. Natives had shown their appreciation of his courage by bedecking him and his companions with flowers, but he had not yet had a chance to remove the scrubby beard which had grown out while he was tossing at sea for nine days.

S. JACOBSEN OT MURDERED, LEWS INDICATE

ile further attempts yesterday to solve the mystery surrounding the manner of death of Mrs. Jacobsen, wife of a restaurant eter, whose bruised and scorched was taken from the lake on Saturday, additional information, officials practically eliminated a y of murder.

new information was the discovery of a second witness, a woman eclared she saw Mrs. Jacobsen from her burning restaurant Rush street and hurry south gh an alley to Grand avenue. witness, Mrs. Agnes Cotter, 111 Ohio street, corroborated statemade by Sam Mirza, 1816 North avenue, to Assistant State's At- y Robert McMillan and Chief of ives Schoemaker.

added that he is sure the n, whose unusually large figure, aid, was unmistakable, turned ward into Grand avenue and coned toward the lake.

oman Is Sure of Her Testimony.

"She held her skirts high as she through the alley and stumbled all but falling," said Mrs. Cot- "I was standing at my back ow and could see her plainly. I Mrs. Jacobsen well by sight and not be mistaken."

is evidence directly links Mrs. bsen with the fire and explosion her restaurant, Capt. Daniel Murphy the Chicago avenue police declared. "The fire looked suspicious to us m the start," said Capt. Murphy. "We know that Mrs Jacobsen alone ed that restaurant, that she was a rmined, forceful kind of person, d that business had been bad there r some time.

"We also know that she had a y heart and was subject to heart acks. I personally believe Mrs. obsen deliberately fled that base ent—just why I don't attempt to say that she hastened to the lake, apently in a panic of suffering and r, and plunged into the water. Since e was subject to heart disease, the ck of the cold water, on top of all r excitement, precipitated an attack, d she died."

Schoemaker Holds Same View.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said t. Murphy's theory of the mysteris death was "about as good as any," ding that he was confident Mrs. obsen was not murdered.

"But we shall hold her husband until er the inquest," he said. "Although, far as we can find, he is implicated neither the fire nor his wife's death, shall play safe."

Another held is Miss Hannah Hann, an attractive blonde girl, friend of e Jacobsens, who has confessed she as the subject of more than one quarl between Jacobsen and his wife.

"Jacobsen often calls me on the hone to meet men in his Clark street staurant," she admitted, a bit of formation that Capt. Murphy beeves may result in a statutory charge eing placed against Jacobsen.

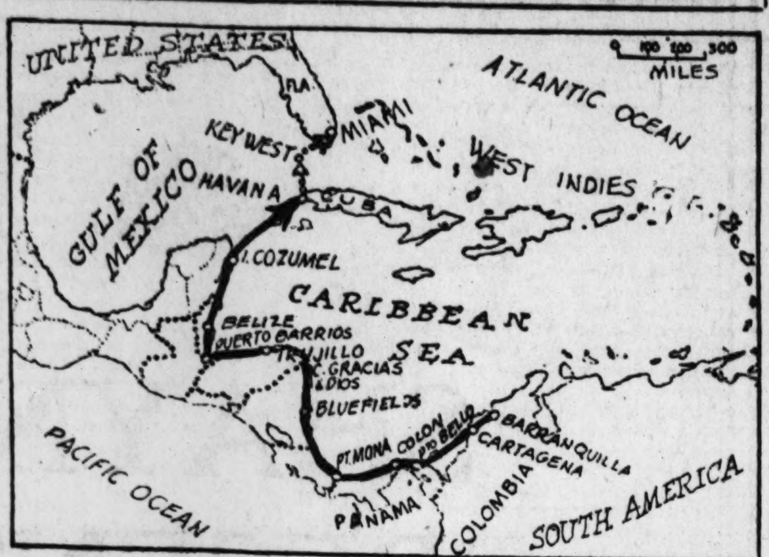
Keep Up Hunt for Waitress.

A search continued yesterday for era Bridgway, discharged employé of the restaurant, against whom Mrs. Jacobsen recently brought an assault charge. Chief Schoemaker said he is confident the Bridgway girl was in no way concerned with Saturday's happenings, but that he wished to check up her grievances with the dead woman. The girl's attorney, Aaron Andren, 140 North Dearborn street, promised to produce her today for questioning.

The origin of the fire, which, according to some witnesses, was accompanied by an explosion, has not been determined. One theory is that gasoline or some other inflammable, which became spattered, through accident or otherwise, about the basement floor, was ignited.

Later both Jacobsen and the Hansen girl were booked for disorderly charges and released on $400 bonds each. They were ordered to appear at an inquest hearing this morning at Duffy's morgue, 841 North State street.

COLOMBIA-U. S. MAIL



BY DEAN SANBORN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HAVANA, Sept. 20.—The two German made passenger and mail hydroplanes blazing an air route between Colombia and the United States, arrived at Havana late last night after a six hour flight from the island of Cozumel, off the coast of Mexico. The trip was made without incident.

The two planes, owned by the Colombian-German Aerial Transport company, which has operated a passenger and mail service between Barranquilla and Bogota for several years, and which are manned and piloted by five Germans, with Capt. Fritz Hammer in command, left Barranquilla last August. The planes have a speed of 100 miles an hour. They carry twenty-five pounds of mail, including letters from the president of Colombia to the heads of all the countries through which they passed en route to the United Staes.

From Barranquilla they made their way up the Central American coast, stopping at Cartagena, Porto Bello, Colon, Port Limon, Costa Rica, Bluefields, Cape Gracios, Nicaragua, Trujillo, Honduras; Puerto Barrios, Guatemala; Belize, and Cape Catoche, Mexico; across the Yucatan channel, Cozumel island, and then to Havana.

They will remain here five days and then proceed to Key West, Fla.

PARIS DIVORCE COURT? NOT FOR MRS. VALENTINO!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Mrs. Rudolph Valentino, arriving in Paris today, emphatically told THE TRIBUNE that she is not here to get a divorce.

"No, thanks, I am not in the market for a Paris divorce," said the screen sheik's wife. "I do not want to see any lawyers. I am going to spend a little visit with my mother. We are going directly to the Riviera for a holiday together at Nice. Outside of that I do not want to affirm, deny or discuss reports about my affairs."

Winnifred's mother, Mrs. Richard Hudnut, who met her daughter at St. Lazare station, also firmly denied the divorce report.

"There is nothing to say—everything is all patched up between Winnifred and Rudolph," declared Mrs. Hudnut.

U. S. TO LAUNCH ANOTHER AIRSHIP CARRIER ACE OCT. 3

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—The navy will launch its second aircraft carrier, the Lexington, on Oct. 3, at the Fore River ship yard at Quincy, Mass. She will be christened by Mrs. T. Douglas Robinson, wife of the assistant secretary of the navy, and join her sister ship, the Saratoga.

Although the Saratoga was launched on April 7, at Camden, N. J., she is no nearer completion than the Lexington. They are both 62 per cent complete and will be ready for commissioning late next year, the Saratoga probably joining the Pacific battle fleet and the Lexington the Atlantic scouting fleet.

The Lexington, exactly like her sister, will be 888 feet long over all, of 105 feet beam, and electrically driven, as are the newer battleships. She will have a speed of 33 knots and a displacement of 33,000 tons. Each ship will be able to carry seventy-two airplanes.

Completion of the Saratoga and Lexintgon, naval officers said, will give the navy two carriers beyond comparison with those of any other power. Japan has two similar carriers under construction, but they are smaller and have less engine power.

Victim Seizes Man Who Swindled Him Out of $400

Frank Baldron, 9607 Avenue L, was defrauded of $400 in a little shell game in Jackson park last week. Yesterday, as he was passing 95th street and Ewing avenue, he saw the men who had showed him how easy it is to part one with one's money. He seized and held Joe Lucas, who lives near Madison and Canal streets and is said to have a police record. Lucas was booked on a confidence game charge.

AIR QUIZ OPENS TODAY WITH FOUR PLANS IN SIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Upon the President's investigating board, which convenes tomorrow, rests the responsibility of determining before Dec. 1 whether the present plan of administering the air service is adequate or should be replaced, in whole or in part, by some other.

At least four plans, differing widely in principle and detail, will be urged before the board. One of these, it is believed, will be recommended to the President as the most efficient.

Four Air Policies.

The four policies are: To continue the present system, to create a separate air service, to adopt the so-called marine corps plan (which in effect would center control in the war department), or to continue the separate air services, giving to each greater scope and authority.

Acting Secretary of War Davis, who will be the first witness to appear before the board, will champion the present system. He is open minded, but will stand by the existing methods until convinced of the merits of any other policy.

Navy Court to Open.

While the President's board considers the main problem of aerial defense, a naval court of inquiry at Lakehurst, N. J., will seek to determine the definite cause of the loss of the Shenandoah.

The question of court martial proceedings against Gen. "Billy" Mitchell is causing no immediate concern at the war department.

GUNS TURN DRUSE HORSE CHARGE TO DANCE OF DEATH

500 Cavalrymen Slain in Fight with 100 French.

BY GEORGE SELDES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

EZRA'A, Palestine, Sept. 18.—[Delayed.]—While final preparations are being made for a general offensive, the French are celebrating today the big victory over the Druses. Outside of our barbed wire fences at the outpost of Musseifire, more than 250 tribesmen lie dead in the burning sun. About 250 dead were carried off. Altogether, the French officers believe 1,000 casualties were inflicted between 4 and 10 o'clock in the morning upon the Druse army, which totals 10,000.

The first big victory with modern weapons against the Druses was a tremendous moral victory, because the Druses, believing in reincarnation, cannot retrieve the 250 dead warriors, and therefore they have lost their souls as well as their bodies for ever. A desperate sadness has filled the savage hearts, French spies report.

Modern War Foils Druses.

It was a battle of cavalry against barbed wire, riflemen against machine guns, 2,000 tribesmen against a mere 100 French. Before daylight the desert stillness was broken by wild shouts and sputtering rifles. Sunrise at 5 a. m. revealed the Druses, with spears, penons and war flags flying, circling Musseifire, southwest of Sueda. Ignorant and heedless of the barbed wire, the Druses charged the handful of Frenchmen, shooting madly, until their horses were caught and slashed and overturned, adding their cries to those of their riders.

The tribesmen and horses were soon tangled in the triple stranded wire, whereupon the French machine guns opened up a cross fire, causing a revolting, hellish scene of carnage, the men, horses, and blood mingling amid the stones and barbed wire.

Tribes Wheel; Attack Again.

Undeterred, the brave savages withdrew, circled, and charged the garrison from another front, where the same slaughter was repeated. From 4 until 10 o'clock the Druses charged, ahorse and afoot, each time retrieving dead and wounded. At 10 o'clock the thermometer registered 100 degrees and the French gunners were dripping with sweat and blood and caked with dust. The last volley saw the remnants of the Druses riding off, almost every warrior carrying dead and wounded comrades. There were virtually no French casualties, thanks to the wire and machine guns.

At sunset today the French were burying the Druses' bodies, which were already growing putrid. The Druses never bury their dead, but expose them, the same as the American Indians, so their souls will be free to be entirely new born. Besides crushing one-tenth of the Druse nation's army, the French have smashed their fondest superstition.

Denies Winnetka Police War on Visiting Motorists

Charges that police of Winnetka are conducting a campaign of persecution against out of town motorists, made by Francis Woolley of Glencoe Saturday when he was arraigned on a charge of speeding, were denied yesterday by Chief of Police W. M. Peterson. Woolley asserted that the police who arrested him were not in uniform and had no badges; furthermore, that they fired on him without cause.

KILLS SELF, WIFE WITH GAS TO ESCAPE POVERTY

With a penniless old age and an incurable illness facing him, Daniel McComish, 60 years old, a laborer, turned on a gas jet in the bedroom of his home, 1642 West 13th street, Friday night. He lay down beside his wife, Agnes, 50 years old, and they died together.

That was the theory held by police yesterday after the discovery of the two bodies in the home by neighbors who had smelled gas. From a brother of Mrs. McComish, Michael Roonel, 1955 West Van Buren street, investigators learned that on several occasions the old man had threatened to take his life. He was suffering from cancer and had little money.

Whether there was a suicide pact, or whether the wife knew nothing of her husband's intentions to end both their lives, the police were unable to discover.

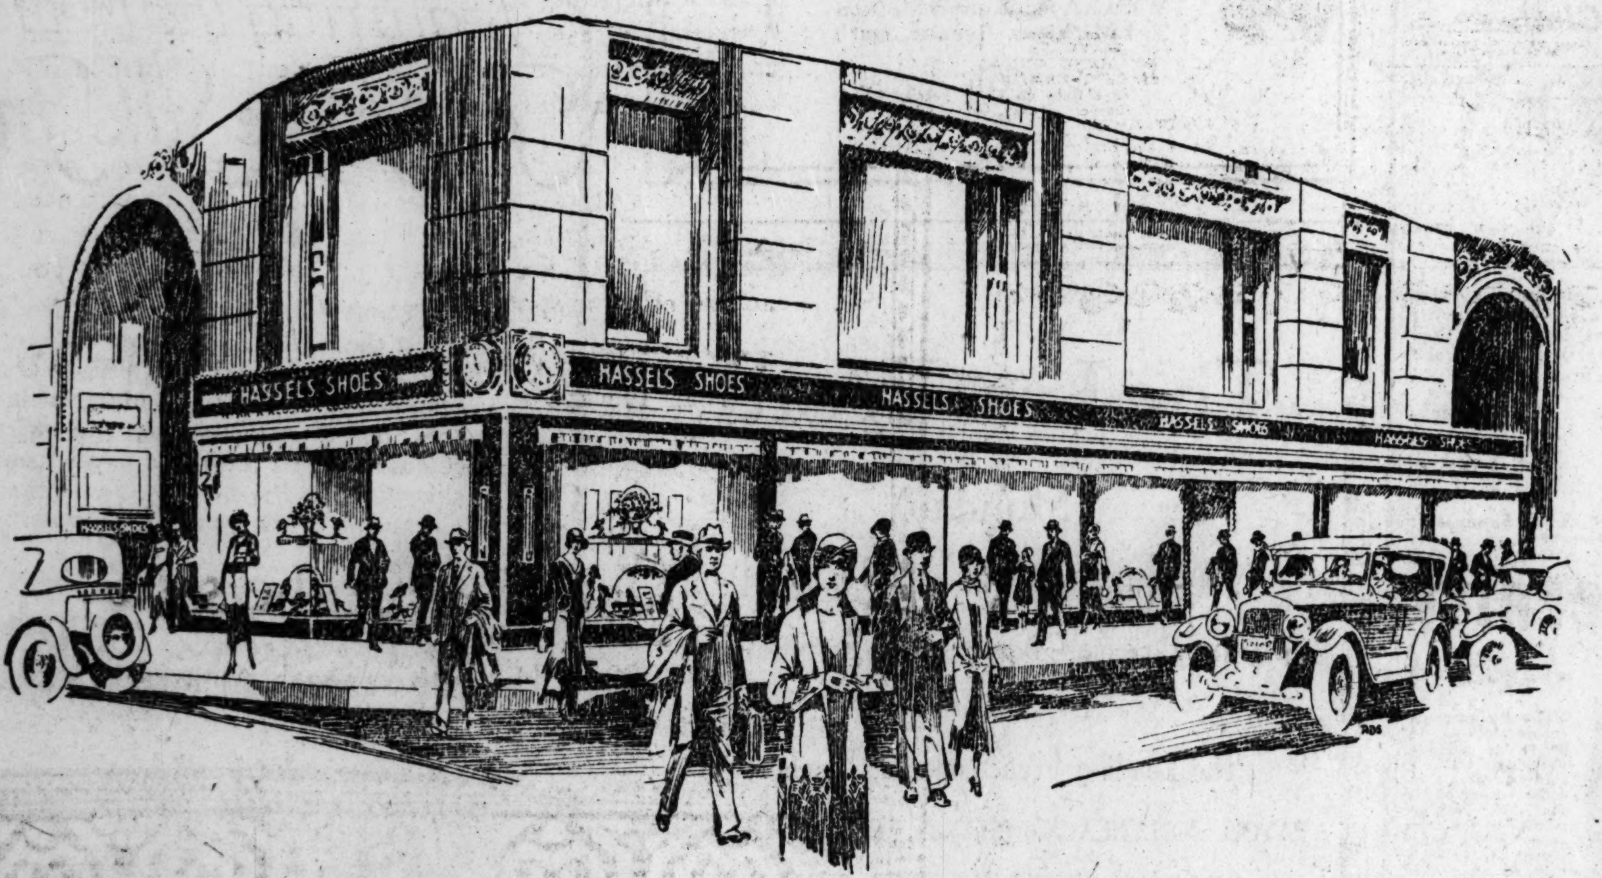
HASSEL'S SHOES

50th ANNIVERSARY!



FIFTY years ago Henry Hassel opened a shoe store near the corner of Van Buren Street and Pacific Avenue—now South La Salle Street. The block now occupied by the Board of Trade and the Postal Telegraph buildings was a vacant lot.

The business prospered. It was devoted to supplying a necessity—good shoes for men, at fair prices for such quality. It has been prospering ever since; still on Van Buren street; still doing a painstaking, sincere job; honest, fair dealing; back of every pair of shoes a guaranty of complete satisfaction or money back.

Naturally, a lot of "good will" has developed. There are thousands of men, young and old—some of the older men bought shoes of Henry Hassel himself, we believe—who wouldn't think of buying shoes anywhere else.

The head of the business today is O. H. Hassel, son of the founder. It is said to be the largest business in men's shoes in the United States.

We send our new fall catalogue on request; and ship mail orders, prepaid, anywhere in the United States.

Urge you to compare qualities before buying

Oriental Rugs

Why do we so often urge you to compare qualities before buying Oriental Rugs? This is the reason:

The average person knows so little about their value that it is easy for a merchant to mark them at prices considerably above their real worth—then mark them down and advertise them as "reduced." And that happens quite often.

The size of a rug has comparatively little to do with its value. It's the quality that counts. Two rugs may be the same size and may look alike. Yet one may be a much better rug than the other. Only by making careful comparisons of qualities as well as prices can you be sure of getting real values.

That's why we urge you to make comparisons.

We are always glad to send rugs to any responsible person so they can make selections and comparisons in their homes.

STRANGE DEATH OF RUTH TABOR LAID TO MISHAP

Late Senator's Widow Fails to Claim Body.

Unable to find any definite clew that Ruth Tabor, believed to be a daughter of the late Senator H. A. W. Tabor of Colorado, was the victim of murder, police last night concluded that the scalds that brought about her death Friday night were accidental.

Witnesses questioned by the police yesterday failed to give credence to the murder theory, and physicians and friends who were familiar with the woman's life declared that a considerable shock would have meant instant death for her. The police, however, are to continue the investigation until various minor questions are cleared up.

Doctor Tells of Her Drinking.

Dr. L. Gulliver Walton, 3762 Lake Park avenue, who had treated her for three years, declared that her excessive use of liquor made it impossible for Miss Tabor to combat any illness or shock. Dr. Henry G. W. Rheinhart, coroner's physician, who made a post-mortem examination, was of the same opinion. She was known also to the police as a drug addict. A complete hypodermic outfit was found in her apartment.

Harold Tift, janitor of the building at 3802 Ellis avenue, where Miss Tabor lived, broke into her apartment Friday night when he heard the woman srceaming for help.

"I have scalded myself. Call a doctor," she muttered, according to Tift's statement to the police. Tift called a neighbor in to help and they removed the woman to a front room where she died shortly after a physician arrived.

Hold Former Saloonkeeper.

Meanwhile police are still holding Jack Reid, former saloonkeeper, whose photograph was found in the apartment, with a scribbled note on the back asking that he be arrested in case of Miss Tabor's death. It read: "If I am killed arrest this man, for he will be directly or indirectly responsible for my death."

Reid denied having seen the woman for several months. At the same time police began a search for a man known as Bill, who was a frequent visitor at the Tabor apartment.

Miss Tabor, believed to be "Silver Dollar" Echo Tabor, daughter of the picturesque United States senator who accumulated and dissipated a fortune estimated at $10,000,000, died estranged from her family and friends.

Yesterday her body was still unclaimed in a south side undertaking establishment, appeals to relatives and friends having gone unanswered. No reply had been received from her mother, Mrs. H. A. W. Tabor, who is living in Leadville, Colo.

A collection was started in the neighborhood to pay the funeral expenses.

Once a Prized Luxury of the Few ~ Now Every Family Can Have It!

Learn About The Minneapolis Budget Plan

Over two million people live in Minneapolis-equipped homes today. They have banished most of the drudgery of fire-tending; they enjoy more comfortable, healthful heat; and in addition save 1/5 to 1/3 of their fuel bill.

But we're not satisfied! And we won't be until every home in America enjoys the advantages of automatic heat control. So we have worked out a plan that enables every family to have it—without "saving up", without any waiting. The new Minneapolis Budget Plan fits any income, provides for easy monthly payments through the winter. The Minneapolis Heat Regulator is a logical article to buy on terms. It saves its own cost many times over, and suffers practically no depreciation—many of the first ones installed by us forty years ago are still functioning satisfactorily.

Have the Minneapolis installed at once on the Budget Plan. Phone for full information and ask for free booklet.

KIMBALL PIANOS

The Relation of Quality and Price

THE moderation of KIMBALL prices has often been a subject of remark with those who have had opportunities of comparing the quality of KIMBALL instruments with that of many other makes.

But to those who have also had an opportunity of visiting the KIMBALL factories the explanation seems very simple. They have noted that each of the many thousands of parts that go into a KIMBALL Piano is made in the KIMBALL factories, and that all manufacturing processes are carried out here, from raw material to finished product. The KIMBALL guarantee is therefore a real assurance of merit.

But even more impressive than the processes by which KIMBALL quality is attained is the perfection of tone and physical beauty realized in the result—and revealed in a demonstration. Come and hear the KIMBALL demonstrated—ask to see the large or small grands, reproducing grands, uprights, players and phonographs. And let us tell you about the KIMBALL "One Price Policy," a sure protection in every purchase made from this house.

SOME SORT OF SUBWAY.

Tired of waiting for the city to start digging, loop property owners are proposing to construct a pedestrian subway, lined with shops, underneath Randolph street, between the Illinois Central suburban terminal and La Salle street. Announcement of the project has been made by James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co. In addition, a smaller tunnel is planned to run north and south beneath the sidewalk on the east side of State street, to serve as a link between store and store.

At last! Some sort of subway. We're for it.

Parenthetically, we want to take a little credit and remind the prospective tunnelers of our elevated sidewalk scheme. The loop property owners are adopting the two level plan, but they're going down from street level instead of up. The principle's the same. If the city won't get the street cars off the streets, the pedestrians must seek other paths.

We see two advantages in our proposed upper level sidewalks. They'd probably be cheaper to build than a tunnel, and they'd not interfere with any future subway development. The latter is one thing for which the Randolph street builders should look out. We believe, however, from the statement of Mr. Simpson saying they hope to make their project the first unit in a city-wide system, that the builders will keep this in mind.

The Randolph street proposition isn't going to cost the public a cent. The backers of the pedestrian subway can afford to pay for a new tunnel out of their own pockets, because in the end it's going to put that money, and more, back into their pockets. It has been estimated that traffic congestion costs Chicagoans annually about $50,000,000. Most of this loss, of course, occurs in the loop. Loop merchants know it. They know that pretentious shopping centers are springing up all over the city because the loop won't hold the shoppers, and the shoppers won't go to the loop, to be stepped on, and jostled, and chased by surging trucks, and street cars, and automobiles.

Not many years ago the suggestion of a double decked or a triple decked street would have seemed fanciful. Today we know it's the only logical means of solving loop congestion. The modern city dweller likes skyscrapers and no law limiting loop building height to conform with street width appears in the offing. If he would go up, the urbanite also must go down. If he wants to climb to work, he must tunnel to go home. As a matter of fact, if the Randolph street subway goes through, we'll have a triple decked street right there, what with the Illinois freight tunnel already underneath. And if we ever should get a real subway we'd have a quadruple level street.

MORE SOCIALISM FOR ENGLAND.

The return to power of the Liberal party, under the leadership of Lloyd George on a platform of land nationalization, would represent a rather extreme swing away from classical Liberalism, but there is little left of that commodity in the Great Britain of today. It was a generation ago that a Liberal prime minister said, "We are all socialists nowadays," and a Benthamite is as rare as the dodo. All the same, Mr. George's proposal would go so far toward the complete triumph of state socialism that the rest of the dose would soon follow.

The genius of the English in economics and politics seems verging on bankruptcy. We do not forget the sins and errors of unmitigated individualism or its evil legacy to this generation. We don't underestimate the problems with which present day English must deal. But the only remedy British statesmanship seems able to think of is some new resort to the state, some subsidy, some pension, some government relief. The whole drift is in this direction instead of towards the stimulation of individual industry and initiative, the encouragement of the leaders of enterprise, the energetic search for better methods, invention and extension of the use of machinery.

Labor, with its fatal fallacy that it can prosper by choking the prosperity of its employers, that it can get more by creating less, that the government is a mystical source of wealth and ease which labor will enjoy as soon as labor seizes government, rests like a deadly burden on British vitality. The middle class is saturated with collectivist sentiment and thought. Toryism, always essentially favorable to a strong state, is no proper champion for individualism, if it were disposed to be, and when it is confronted by Mr. George's nationalization scheme it must, as John Steele reminds us, remember that in theory all land is holden of its liege lord and sovereign, the king.

Between socialism, on the left, and the sympathy of the Tory for a strong state, individualist democracy, which is, as we see Britain's plight, the salvation of the British people, is friendless and forgotten. Doles, subsidies, nationalized mines, railroads, and land are the patent remedies for evils which can be cured only by the energizing of British labor and the modernization of British methods.

But the British worker must realize that he cannot be saved by his government from competition with the energy and modernity of other peoples. He must realize that his problem of salvation is not primarily one of distribution of wealth, but the production of wealth. He has been doped by the doctrinizing of his intellectual leaders, mere men of the pen. British management also needs a change of viewpoint and doctrine, less ancestor worship, more respect for competitors, and more initiative. The middle class would do well to realize and organize its power, but it probably is pretty well tinctured with Fabian socialism, and is going with the current. If the labor organizations are seized by the communists, the middle class may wake up to resist that threat, but we doubt it will get clear of the socialist drift.

So Lloyd George, once the fiery Radical of the Limehouse speech, later war autocrat, and ally and protégé of the Tories, then nondescript Liberal, has revealed again his genius for popular politics and with his plausible land scheme is not unlikely to recover a good measure of his former power. We don't think England's greatness is going to be restored by any such device, but in the present muddle there is much to be said for it and Lloyd George knows how to say it most effectively.

AN OPEN DOOR TO CANADA.

Proposed changes in the immigration laws, designed to perfect the restrictive act of 1924, are beginning to attract attention in Washington. Secretary of Labor Davis is said to have in mind several amendments which he wishes to recommend to the immigration committees of the house and senate. Among them, it is reported, is an extension of the quota system to include Canada, Mexico, and Central and South America, territories now unrestricted.

Reserving detailed comment on the secretary's proposals until their publication as a whole, we think it fitting to suggest at this time, nevertheless, one axiom which congress ought to keep in mind when it takes up new immigration legislation. This is, that there shall be no change in the present portions of the law permitting the entrance of Canadian citizens into the United States without quota restrictions.

It is a duty of congress to see to it that this country shall do nothing which might alter the friendly relations between the English speaking neighbors of North America. The closer the friendship and understanding between the two countries the greater will be the mutual advantage. It would be cause for high indignation were Americans restricted from crossing the border. So will the Canadians feel if they are to be prevented from passing at will that line which can serve the two nations best by being most truly imaginary.

An extension of the quota was threatened before, during investigation of the bootlegging of European and Asiatic aliens from Canada. In reply, Canadian officials renewed their offer to coöperate with the United States in every way to check the illegal flow. This attitude furnishes some proof of the Canadian state of mind. If the bootlegging of aliens across the border is at the bottom of Mr. Davis' proposal, Canada has set us an example of coöperation which we should follow instead of turning to a course which might well alienate her good will.

In geographic setting, in heritage, in temperament, and in national ideals no other nation on earth resembles our country so closely as does Canada. Canadian immigration presents no problem of assimilation. The only other countries to approximate this close relationship are Australia and New Zealand. Ask any doughboy who went overseas with what allied fellow soldiers he got along best. At least two out of three times, if he met them, he'll say the Canadians and the Anzacs.

Let the door to the north stand open.

THE TRAVELERS' RETURN.

Most of the travelers are now back from Europe. Some of them, particularly those most recently arrived, are still telling us about it. On behalf of uncounted thousands of those who must suffer in silence for lack of a platform such as this from which we speak, we say:

We are not interested in the cost of living in Italy. We do not care what the mate said to the steward on that rough day—the third out from New York. We get no thrill from a recital of how much the chorus girls in Paris take off. We shall rest content without knowing what the head porter in the Berlin hotel said when given a tip of only one mark and fifty pfennigs, which should have been enough, in view of the fact that only one night had been spent there.

On the contrary, we understand Pennsylvania has a superb team, capable of defeating both Illinois and Chicago, provided they can find some one to replace McGinley, the all-American tackle, and Coleman and Papworth, the star guards.

Editorial of the Day

THE COSTLY WHITE COLLAR.

[New York Herald-Tribune.]

A Massachusetts state engineer who has been bossing a $200,000 road job for $1,800 a year has resigned and gone to work with a pick and shovel on the road whose construction he formerly supervised. For this work he gets 65 cents an hour, and on this he says he can save more than he could on a salary.

It is becoming more and more difficult for cities and states to secure efficient engineering forces, for the reason that the pay that was once deemed adequate is no longer sufficient to enable those who receive it to meet expenses. The old idea that a white collar job at a low salary was better than an overall job at high wages has been abandoned pretty generally since the cost of food and clothes has advanced. Men, especially those with families, must have money, and they no longer feel that it is necessary to earn it in clean clothes.

It is still true that the engineer who is engaged in the pursuit of his profession has a better chance of ultimate advancement; but ultimate advancement means waiting, and waiting is not pleasant with the wolf just a few paces behind.

INHERITANCE OF MENTAL DISEASES.

"PROBLEM: Given a certain type of mental disease in an ancestor, what form of mental disease is to be expected in his first direct insane descendant."

Myerson begins chapter ten of his "The Inheritance of Mental Diseases" with the above words. Several years ago he wrote: "All roads lead to dementia precox, and from thence to imbecility." By this he meant that, whatever the form of mental disease, a person having any insane antecedents would have either dementia precox or imbecility. This opinion he has modified in the light of further study. His opinion now is as follows:

Such descendants of paranoids as develop insanity are generally paranoids, though some finally reach dementia precox. The descendants of manic-melancholics develop melancholic disorders, though a few develop dementia precox. Dementia precox in an ancestor tends towards no form of mental disease in a descendant except dementia precox and occasional imbecility. Nothing is known of any tendency towards inheriting paresis or alcoholic insanity.

The three basic kinds of insanity which seem to have some tendency to be inherited are: Dementia precox, manic-depressive and paranoia. Imbecility is a step beyond dementia precox.

Myerson's study was based on the records of families in Massachusetts hospitals. In one case there was a history of four generations of a single family in state hospitals. In several families he was able to study insanity in three generations. The number of two generation families studied was large. These quotations give the impression that Myerson believes in inheritance being a major factor in insanity. He holds a contrary opinion.

In the first place, the insane, as a rule, do not have many descendants. Many of them do not marry. Many who marry do not mate until late in life. Many marriages are fruitless. All in all, there are not many descendants of the group called the insane. This statement includes the feeble minded, the imbeciles, the morons and the people with dementia precox, manic-depressive insanity and paranoia.

Where a person with a mental disease marries, begets and rears children, the probability is that the influence of the other parent will save the children from mental disorder. He says: "Not many cases of four generation mental disease can be adduced, because it is rare for mental disease to last four generations in any one group." And, also: "Rare indeed is that mingling of stocks whereby a mental disease persists unaltered for more than two generations."

As a general proposition, as the generations come on, there is an upward tendency—a tendency back toward the normal—in these what may be mental disease stocks. This is principally as a result of the bringing in of "better blood" through marriage and the weeding out of the worst by a lack of fertility.

Dr. Myerson thinks inheritance as a factor in disease and deformity has been overworked. The accepted laws on the subject have been based on very faulty observations and very bad reasoning. Especially is this true of the so called laws of inheritance of insanity.

As bearing on the same subject, he thinks the term "insane" should be dropped. It is used as a group term for a lot of conditions, perhaps not all of which are mental diseases. Among these are some mental diseases which are inheritable and others which are not. He prefers to use the term "mental diseases" for the group and then to consider each disease as separate and apart from the others in the group.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

STREET WILL SOON BE PAVED.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—[Friend of the People.]—Early last spring we received notice that the sidewalks on the east side of Austin avenue between Dickens and Grand avenue were to be laid. Nothing has been done, though. Why is this much needed improvement held up?

W. L. S.

The assessment has been confirmed for sidewalks in a system of streets, including the vicinity mentioned, and we will soon advertise for bids on the work.

EDWARD J. GLACKIN,
Secretary Board of Local Improvements.

RAINED ON.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My neighbor has recently built a frame garage with a slanting roof and the rain pours from the roof against my brick garage and it is doing considerable damage. What redress, if any, have I?

J. E. F.

Notify the owner that if he does not correct this condition you will employ an attorney to collect damages.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INHERITANCE TAX.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—In regard to inheritance tax, is that collected from the person making the will or from the heirs?

F. McN.

The state inheritance tax is a charge against the beneficiaries but is ordinarily paid by the personal representative.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROBABLY A SWINDLE.

Forest Park, Ill., Sept. 15.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Some time ago I solved a puzzle and sent the answer to a firm in California. I was awarded a prize which is almost half of the amount paid for a lot in southern California. Would you advise me to take this and pay for the balance or do you suppose they are swindlers?

C. B.

It is almost the invariable rule that real estate offered as a prize in a guessing contest is not worth the charges that are made for bringing the abstract down to date, etc.

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 21, 1865.

BALTIMORE.—A letter from President Johnson expresses his regret that the press of official business prevents him from attending the big Odd Fellows demonstration which began here yesterday. The opening day was featured by a parade in regalia.

NEW YORK.—The Commercial Advertiser says that a Portland, Me., merchant saw John H. Surratt, wanted for complicity in the assassination of President Lincoln, in Montreal a week ago. On one occasion when detectives were close on his trail he was secreted under the altar of one of the churches.

NEW YORK.—A delegation of sixteen Chicago aldermen and other city officials arrived here. They will remain until the first of next week, when they will go to Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and Pittsburgh.

WASHINGTON.—It is said that the ex-rebel vice president, Alexander H. Stephens, now confined in Fort Warren, soon will be pardoned, and will return to Georgia to coöperate with ex-Gov. Brown and others in the reconstruction work in that state.

NEW YORK.—The Republican state convention nominated Gen Francis C. Barlow for secretary of state, Thomas H. Hillhouse for controller, Col. Howland for state treasurer and—(at this point the telegraph has badly mangled the report and abruptly alludes to the report of the committee on resolutions).

CHICAGO.—John H. Higinbotham, cashier of the American Express company here, leaves today for Louisville, where he will become managing agent for the company.

CHICAGO.—John R. Trimmer of the Michigan Southern and Miss Sadie L. Himes were married by the Rev. O. H. Tiffany, D.D., at the residence of E. S. Pinney. J. H. L. Morford of New York and Miss Emily P. Franklin, daughter of the late Rev. W. E. Franklin, were married at Grace church by the Rev. Clinton Locke.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 21, 1900.

LONDON.—The Standard prints a story describing the frightful atrocities perpetrated by the Russians on the Chinese at Blagoveschensk. It says that 5,000 of the unarmed and helpless Chinese were herded on the banks of the Amur river. Then they were ordered to cross over. There being no bridges, this meant death. All who rebelled were clubbed to death or shot on the spot and their bodies thrown among the drowning victims in the stream. Men, women and children suffered the same fate. Not one was left alive. All were robbed before they were slain and their homes were looted. The article concludes: "This massacre was undoubtedly performed under the direct orders of the authorities."

SALT LAKE CITY.—Senator Nebeker's career as acting governor while Gov. Wells was out of the state was a busy one. In addition to appointing Judge Orlando W. Powers to the United States senate, to fill a vacancy, he "fired" Warden Dow of the penitentiary and asked the president of the board of trustees of the agricultural college to resign. Gov. Wells characterized Nebeker's action as "burlesque." However, Judge Powers declares his appointment is legal and he will fight for it through the courts and "stand by my rights."

CHICAGO.—William W. Kennedy, chief of police in Chicago during the great fire and a pioneer resident of the city, was found dead in his room at McEwen's hotel, 91 West Madison street. He was 68 years old.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBFR 21, 1915.

LONDON.—Two messages received here made the Balkan field the center of interest in the war. Both were discouraging to the allies. One was from Sofia and said that Bulgaria has begun the mobilization of troops made up of Macedonians. The other was the official announcement from the Berlin war office that German artillery engaged in battle with the Serbians on the Danube and drove them back. A Vienna dispatch says the Belgrade fortifications were fired upon. The news is taken to mean that the kaiser has begun his long predicted drive to aid the Turks and it is feared this means the embroiling of all the Balkan states in the war.

SPRINGFIELD.—Gov. Dunne was elected president of the Famous Fathers' Club of Illinois, the membership of which comprises male parents of ten or more children. Gov. Dunne is the father of thirteen.

FREEPORT, ILL.—Owing its depositors $138,000, with no cash on hand and with J. Bradley Fuller, the managing partner, absent for a week, the private bank of J. N. Fuller & Son closed. Application was made at Rockford for a receiver.

CHICAGO.—The engagement was announced of Miss Katharine Forest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Forest of Hubbard Woods, to Carroll C. Kendrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kendrick, 1321 North State street.

EDWARD II., King of England, murdered by connivance of the Queen, 1327. (And we'll bet a cookie that if she was good looking, the jury said she had a right to shoot him.) Sun crosses the equinox today. Goodness, how short the days are getting! John London Macadam born 1756. (But we like Mr. Asphalt pavements better than Mr. Macadam's; if John Hertz's lorries would quit making them look like the battlefields of France.) French assembly this day voted to abolish the monarchy, 1792. (Somebody had invented the guillotine and the French just loved to see it work.) The weather is uncertain; we may have a killing frost tonight. Or the thermometer may go to 110 in the shade.

How to Tell When One Is Growing Old.

R. H. L.: I'm getting old. A few years ago when I tagged they called me "Little girl" and "Kid," but Saturday they called me "Lady!"

H. E. G.

We've Noticed That.

R. H. L.: Red-headed men kiss? Go to, good Richard! They blush if you look at 'em, stammer and stutter, and back hastily away if you ask 'em a simple question, and if any girl ever tried to kiss one of 'em, she'd have to prove to a jury that she was too pretty to hang.

JOZIA.

CONCLUSION.

Under the spring you were a girl, intense
And lean. Now autumn's come; the orchard where We watched for narrow fruit is threaded dense
With smoke—and you have ripened like a pear.
Smoke sweet and acrid like a querulous
Sweet violin—the air is sharp with omen—
Winter stiffens the wind—and a strenuous
Pale girl is darkened like fruit, and is a woman.

The wood rattles with autumn. A tree shudders cold,
Showers its wide gold leaves on the air: A tree
Shudders, and red leaves shuffle with the gold
Like words that flame and fall—and endlessly
The rains drone, beating the last leaves away,
Treading their gold and scarlet into clay.

GEORGE H. DILLON.

AND NOW Gertrude Ederle blames her trainer for her failure to swim across the English channel. Darned if the girls aren't getting more like the men every day.

The Prof. Has Wrecked Us.

R. H. L.: There was a time when one could check in at home the evening after the night before and say, "My dear, you surely look charming"—one could sometimes get away with it. Things have changed, however, and now, instead of mollifying the wife, such a remark serves only to infuriate her. She replies bitterly and with scorn, "Yes, Professor Sollohub, I'm glad you can see me this evening. Your eyes were not so good last night."

THE VISCOUNT OF THE YARDS.

LIVE STOCK.

R. H. L.: Have you heard this one: A man walked into an animal store and asked for 30,000 cockroaches. The storekeeper, of course, was astounded. Then the man explained that there was a clause in his lease that said he must leave the apartment just as he found it.

THE REALIST.

IN AN ALIEN LAND.

R. H. L.: A handful of Chinamen in the Whirlpool of Michigan Boulevard. A solemn white hearse amidst the frivolous traffic. Staring eyes and voices not even lowered in courtesy. A shrill voice cries out in a strange language—

> Woe is unto us—our Brother—long Days did he labor for his Rice and for his little Sunflower back in the Happy Land. A Prince he would have been. . . . But no—he must dig up his Honourable Roots—must forsake Confucius for Mammon. . . . And the Royal Parents—their Weeping will sweep over the Fields like the Sighing of the Wind. Ah! Woe! To die alone in a busy World—a Stranger.

Bowed heads. Poker faces. Burning eyes and taut lips. And, from out of the street, the harsh cry of a child: "Oh! lookit th' Chinks."

C. C.

If You Wish Doggerel, Yes.

Dear Mr. Little: I am so distressed. Friday in the WGN, Vaughan's seed store advertised for early spring blooming tulips, daffodils, narcissus, etc., and pedigreed puppies. What I don't know is, do you plant them with the bark up or down—for early spring blooming? Thanking you for the information I am, deferentially, and sunset through a topaz window saint;

and water frothing down a mountain fold. . . .

And these are only fragments of what sound can mean to me, when molded in your hands, when folded and caressed and coaxed and pressed by your cool fingers in their cool unrest!
To think that with mere tones you fashion bands

R. H. L.: 'Ray for Spencer! The o. h. t. Don't fail to look up my old friend (J. H.) McCord after you breeze in. He's good for at least a meal. And in case the damp breezes off old Okoboji should give you a hemma olagenti—well, anyhow—you'll be out where the raw corn flows.

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

"SLOPPY" EDITORIALS.

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 18.—I wonder if you will have the courage to print this letter. I like THE TRIBUNE as a daily newspaper. It stands so nobly on other great questions, but I cannot understand why it treats national prohibition so lightly. The eighteenth amendment was not quietly "slipped over," but was secured by the majority of American citizens after a long and open fight in behalf of home, manhood, peace, health, and happiness. It seems to me that some of your cartoons and editorials not only make the constitutional amendment odious before the people, but tend to encourage the lawbreaker. The home maker of "moonshine" would especially like the cartoon of yesterday entitled "Driven Into the Home."

Our prohibitory laws against murder and robbery do not prevent killing and stealing any more than our prohibitory laws against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks prevent the making of "moonshine" and drunkenness, which in turn are responsible for so much crime. But who would be so bold as to advocate the repeal of our prohibitory laws against killing and stealing? Who would advocate that we legalize, say two or three per cent of murder and robbery? All prohibitory laws, when properly enforced as they should be, certainly tend to restrain crime of every sort.

By the way, who writes those "sloppy" editorials in THE TRIBUNE? Why doesn't he sign his name? Anonymous letters are cowardly. Come on, TRIBUNE, 'fess up! Let that "thirsty" pusher of the pencil sign his name, so the public can know who the writer is. I openly sign my name to my statements. Come along, TRIBUNE, let us be enlightened.

THE EMPLOYMENT OBJECTIVE SENSE.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—What is meant by "his employment objective is advertising"?

Is there such an employment objective?

I have heard of advertising managers, local advertising managers, retail advertising managers, department store advertising managers, and agency advertising managers, both national and local; of national advertising, local and foreign advertising; judicious and profitable advertising; direct mail advertising; outdoor advertising; motion picture advertising; newspaper and magazine advertising; of copy writers; of advertising solicitors, display advertising solicitors, classified advertising solicitors; of layout men and visualizers; free lance advertising writers, and of staff advertising writers; of contact men; research men; of mouth to mouth advertising; of advertising executives; of advertising representatives, both national and local; and of many other branches and divisions of advertising; and of many other classes of many different kinds of employés in the advertising field; but I have yet to learn what is a person whose employment objective is advertising.

My objective as to employment is advertising, and I am cranky about it, for it doesn't fit me, somehow.

What is it? Is there such an occupation as advertising in the employment objective sense of the term?

GUSTAVE LEROY.

WHY THEY SELDOM HANG.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Why don't juries inflict the death penalty? It is not because of expert testimony. It is not ordinarily because they do not believe the prisoners guilty. It is certainly not because they believe in crime. Nor do I believe it is due to the sob sister tactics of defending counsel.

Juries do not inflict death penalty because, sitting day after day with the accused, they come to have a sense of fellowship, of kinship with them. The longer the trial drags the deeper and stronger does this sense of fellowship become.

People who do not come into contact with the prisoners cry, "Why don't they string them up?" It is easy to cry for the blood of some one you don't know. Contact with the felon brings sympathy and crowds out the sense of social justice. It is almost impossible to get a hanging verdict from a jury in a long trial.

If hanging verdicts are to be obtained the trials must be short.

C. N. SAL

CONVICTION FOR MURDER.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Your reporters say that the two jurors who held out against the death penalty in the Drake hammer murder case finally were won over by the argument that if these men got life they might escape, as other murderers have, and for revenge kill jurors and prosecutors. It was a good argument, for it won. But if offered as anything more than strategy as the reason why the outlaws should be hanged it affords a very sad commentary on somebody's sense of jury duty and obligations of citizenship.

Must we wait until our own life is imperiled before we shall be willing to do our duty, to administer justice? Isn't it enough that murder is committed, the law is defied, that society is outraged? With THE TRIBUNE, I believe that more hangings mean fewer murders and rejoice in this verdict, but we shall rejoice all the more when there are more such verdicts based on broader and better ground.

J. B. W.

A MIDDLE GROUNDER.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—Being a strong advocate of temperance all my life, but always an opponent of prohibition, I feel I am qualified to offer an impartial view on the 18th amendment. I do not believe that men's social or personal habits can be controlled by legislation. I am strong in my conviction that the greatest enemy to temperance is prohibition. I have heard it said that the 18th amendment is the greatest tyranny of history. Granted that such is the case, is not the tyranny of the bootlegger and the home brewer just as great?

It used to be a pleasure to call on my friends and spend a few pleasurable hours discussing important national questions or some great writer, without the filthy odor of fermenting beer or the more disgusting smell of moonshine. The cure for drinking called prohibition seems to me to be worse than the disease. Drive out the bootlegger and end the home breaking by adjusting the prohibition law to conform to the desires and customs of the people. This I will say: So long as the 18th amendment is on the books it ought to be obeyed by all Americans. Those that do not obey it, punish them.

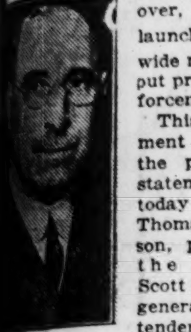
nti-Saloon League Opens Nation-Wide Drive.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Spe]—The Anti-Saloon league, which put prohibition over, is about to launch a nation-wide movement to put prohibition enforcement over.



BISHOP NICHOLSON.

This announcement is made to the public in a statement issued today by Bishop Thomas Nicholson, president of the league; F. Scott McBride, its general superintendent; Dr. Howard H. Russell, its founder, and Wayne B. Wheel its general counsel, commenting on report of the Federal Council of urches on the prohibtion experi nt.

"The report of the churches con s many facts which will challenge friends of the eighteenth amend t to action," says the statement. There is nothing in the report which tifies the use which the opponents prohibtion are making of it to ster their claim that prohibition is failure. The report itself shows that ohibition has improvd conditions en contrasted with the wet period.

Claim Comparisons Prove Case.

"The conditions in 1924, compared with some other dry year, show losses in some respects and gains in others. But when any dry year is compared with any wet year, allowing for population increases the advantages of prohibition are clear. Prohibition is not required to beat its own record. It does, however, beat the best records of the license period. The tendncy of the report is to underestimate its benefits and overestimate its weaknesses.

"Wherever there is a partial failure in law enforcement, with accompanying bad results, it simply proves the necessity for friends of prohibition to redouble their efforts to enforce the law.

For Pitiless Publicity.

"The Anti-Saloon league believes in pitiless publicity on liquor lawlessness and its attendant evils. This league has now under good headway a joint program of its national and state organizations, effectively to back up all officials from the President to constable, in rigid enforcement of the law. The league's national convention in Chicago in November has been called to perfect and proclaim this program to the country.

"We challenge the majority which wrote the eighteenth amendment into the constitution to continue to fight, arouse public sentiment, cure existing defects, stop the leaks and enlist the people for law observance and law enforcement."

Quiet Sunday Programs Are Joy to Elmer

Were in Keeping With the Day, He Says.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

There was something of hominess, a quiet, reminiscent atmosphere, about programs yesterday afternoon and evening—an unusual something in keeping with the day.

The 4 to 5 o'clock Sunday hour is always more or less good, but it deserved special emphasis yesterday.

The W. A. Wieboldt orchestra at W-G-N is new to us by name, but it must be composed of experienced musicians, yet not too experienced, else its playing might not have had the freshness, the spontaneity, the airiness distinctly noticeable. Incidentally, the use of the station's organ in its selection from "Cavaleria Rusticana" was very effective.

The concert by the Greenfield Instrumental quartet at KYW was a decidedly varied one. There was a catchy "Darkies' Jubilee" of typical barn dance character. Later on the fourth movement from Moszkowski's piano concerto, played in all the beauty and grandeur of regulation symphony orchestra players. The fact this concert was furnished by the Redpath bureau was of itself interesting.

The WBCN, Lain & Son classical concert, with its serious pipe organ selections by Robert Stronach, very high order solo and ensemble singing by the Oriental quartet; yes, and the deep, fatherly-like voiced announcer, together made this really more than worth the hearing. There is something about this regular Sunday afternoon concert that commands respect.

On the WQJ 8 to 10 program, was the Fontella trio (ladies' voices), who have extraordinarily fine radio voices. Their singing of Metcalf's "Absence" would have melted a heart of stone—evidently Metcalf had at least one terrible heartbreak. And the way the contralto weaved minuets around the soprano in "While the Birds Are Singing" (Ambrose), was indeed a joy to hear. Also for Everett Mitchell, baritone, and Catherine Diepenbrock, pianist, many words of praise.

Here's what occurred, in their order, at WEBH, 8:40 to 9: Oriole orchestra playing Ted Fiorito's haunting; O, so haunting! "Some Time:" Belle Forbes Cutter, soprano, singing as it should be sung, "The Last Rose of Summer," with organ accompaniment by Howard Neumiller (this new organ is about the size of a large radio set!) Chopin's late fall, melancholy, Nocturne opus 42, played by George Seeberg, pianist; Oriole orchestra in Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance." Announcer Boniel: "The boys of the Oriole orchestra are leaving tonight for a two weeks' vacation."

FIND WOMAN SHOT TO DEATH.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Monday, Sept. 21.)

(Chicago Daylight Saving Time.)

ANOTHER excellent hour of music will be inaugurated this afternoon at W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, when Samuel Leviton and his orchestra, which play each day in Marshall Field & Co.'s tea room, makes its radio debut during "tea time," from 3:30 to 4:30 p. m. GIRL, 16, ADMITS AIDING PALS IN TAXICAB HOLDUPS

Used Knife for Gun and It Always Worked.

A diminutive red haired girl of sixteen comfortably settled herself in a big arm chair at the detective bureau last night and unfolded recent activities of a bandit gang of which she was a member which cleared for police at least eight taxicab robberies of the last forty-eight hours.

The girl, Mrs. Elizabeth Bernard Casselman, had been arrested along with her husband, Roy Casselman Jr., and two others at the Casselman home at 126 North Ashland avenue early yesterday by Lieut. John Mangan and his squad, consisting of Detective Sergeants Francis O'Neill, Patrick Cooney, John Barrett, and John McMahon.

Others Are Arrested.

The others taken were Lloyd Casselman, brother-in-law of the newest discovered "gun girl," and William Courtney, 22 years old. The Casselman brothers are sons of Roy Casselman Sr., a west side real estate dealer.

A desire of the gang to take an auto trek to California served as the inspiration for the series of taxicab holdups which has had police on the jump all week, the girl said.

"And I went along just for the fun of it," she added. "And," a mischievous gleam coming into her hazel eyes, "it was really too comical to see those poor chauffeurs shell out all the dough and then crawl out of their cabs.

Never Used a Gun.

"One of the boys would usually put on the chauffeur's uniform and cap, then we'd take his taxi and go cruising for more folks to hold up. And to think we did it all without a gun.

"Either Bill or Lloyd, or maybe it would be Roy, would simply stick the handle of a big butcher knife in the chauffeur's back as we drove along and the chauffeur would turn pale as death. He would think every time it was a gun and give right up."

According to Lieut. Mangan, the three youths arrested with the girl have also partially admitted proticipating in the robberies. In his endeavor to run down the young bandit gang. Lieut Mangan got a description of their Titian haired girl accomplice and finally identified her as being Roy Casselman's wife. Then the squad watched the Casselman home until the gang arrived home early yesterday.

How Gang Worked.

The "racket" of the gang was to engage a taxi and order it driven to some address on a remote street. The first the driver would know he would feel the muzzle of a revolver against his neck and receive the order to "shell out." Some of the complaining chauffeurs are Sam Cohen, 2144 West Division street, robbed of a watch and $25; Joseph Kaczynski, 6218 South Morgan street, $7; Arthur Madden, 2018 Indiana avenue, $15; Fred Walsh, 4414 Dover street, $5; George Cameron, 2635 West 13th street $18.

FUNERAL TOMORROW FOR ORETT MUNGER, CIVIL WAR VETERAN

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at McCabe Memorial Methodist church for Orett Lyman Munger, Union army veteran, who died suddenly at his home, 1719 East 54th street, Saturday. The George H. Thomas post No. 5, G. A. R. will assist in the services. Burial will be in Oakwoods. He was 85 years old.

Capt. Munger, who enlisted in the 44th New York infantry in 1862 and served with the Army of the Potomac in many of the major engagements of the civil war, came to Chicago in 1881 and joined with his brother in operating the Munger Bros. laundry.

He was president of the board of trustees of the McCabe church and was connected with many Union army organizations. He is survived by three sons and three daughters.

RED CROSS WILL HONOR EATON AT RITES TODAY

A blanket of red and white roses, emblematic of the American Red Cross of the Chicago chapter of which he was general chairman for many years, will drape the casket of Marquis Eaton at the burial this afternoon in Oakwoods cemetery after services at the Hyde Park Congregational church. The Rev. Theodore Soares, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, pastor of the Hyde Park Baptist church, a close friend of Mr. Eaton's, will deliver eulogies.

The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross will be represented by Col A. A. Sprague, A. A. Carpenter, William J. Wrigley Jr., J. B. Forgan Jr., John W. Scott, James Simpson, Frank O. Wetmore, and Charles H. Wacker. The Chicago Bar association, the Union League club, and the consuls of Chicago will also be represented.

Active pallbearers will be Dayton Keith, Lucius Peters, Hiram Cody, Henry H. Hilton, Carl Johnson, and Howard Bement. There will be no honorary pallbearers.

Chicago Oil Dealer Held in New York Auto Crash

Beverly T. Thompson, described as a wealthy Chicago oil dealer, was held in $1,000 bonds yesterday in New York pending the outcome of injuries to Mrs. Mary Berger, who was struck by his automobile Saturday night. Thompson said that he had accompanied his son to Harvard and was stopping over in New York for a few days.

Beverly Thompson, manager for the Standard Oil company, resides at 161 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. Efforts to reach members of the family last night were unsuccessful.

YELLOWLEY'S COMING GIVES CLUBS A SCARE

The advent of E. C. Yellowley as prohibition director for the Chicago district, coupled with the recent raid by federal agents upon the Fish Fans club, has sent a chill of disquiet over club managers in these parts, reports yesterday indicated.

"Maybe Mr. Yellowley won't take a notion to pay us a visit, and then again maybe he might," was the way one official of a club put it. "Anyway, we're taking no chances. Every member of this organization has been duly—and amply—warned to remove any liquor that might accidentally be tucked away in his locker. And it isn't just a warning, either—it's a warning with teeth in it, so far as this club goes."

BROTHERS SHOT FROM AMBUSH IN LABOR WAR

Harry and Oscar Nozak, said to be business agents of the Garment Workers' union, were ambushed by three men in the alley behind the Nozak home at 5740 Green street last night, and in a revolver battle which followed, both the brothers were wounded. They said they believed they had winged one of the attacking force.

At the Geerman Deaconess hospital, it was found that neither of the brothers was seriously wounded. Both declared their assailants were men who worked for an organization of garment employers.

Policeman Foils Attempt of Woman to Drown in Lake

The attempt of a middle aged woman to drown herself in the lake at the foot of Webster avenue was foiled last night by Lincoln Park Policeman E. J. Gaff, who rescued her. At the Columbus hospital the woman, who speaks with a German accent, refused to tell her name or why she had tried to drown.

40 AND 8 POSTERS OF FRENCH WINES STIR PROTEST BY W. C. T. U.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 20.—(AP)—W. C. T. U. leaders are aroused over plans of the 40 and 8, playground of the American Legion, to plaster Omaha with "risque" French posters advertising liquors and displaying semi-nude figures durng the Legion convention here next month.

A. C. McCampbell, prohibition director for three states here, has been asked to interfere.

Samples of the posters have arrived. They show Frenchy girls and labeled bottles with teasing invitations to drink. The 40 and 8 plans to paste them on every blank wall that can be found

Mrs. Earl F. Bragg today said she expected Mr. McCampbell to rule the posters a violation of the Volstead act in advertising intoxicating liquor even though the place of sale was across an ocean.

Officers of the 40 and 8 claim the posters are intended to create a "Parisian atmosphere" for Omaha.

SKEPTICS CAN'T BUDGE SIMPSON IN SUBWAY PLAN

Holds to Belief Idea Is a Good One.

"It remains to be seen," said James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co., yesterday apropos Mayor Dever's skepticism over the proposal of rialto property owners to construct a pedestrian subway under Randolph street from the Illinois Central suburban station to La Salle street. Mr. Simpson proposed that the expense of constructing the subterranean walk be cared for by the merchants and property owners.

Mayor Dever thinks the natural aversion to walking up and down stairs is sufficient to put a crimp in the Simpson idea. The mayor pointed to the Randolph street subway under Michigan avenue as an example of a costly improvement that people do not use because it means descending and ascending a few stairs.

Different Idea, He Says.

"I can see the mayor's viewpoint," Mr. Simpson said yesterday. "But I can also visualize a subterranean street with atractive shop windows along its several blocks. A subterranean street of that kind is much different from a mere passageway under one street.

"When it is possible for people to go directly from the Illinois Central suburban station to the shops and theaters several blocks distant, along a beautifully lighted street with store and shop windows without crossing the streets and traffic on the ground level, I think they would make good use of it.

Consult Property Owners.

"It remains to be seen," he said again. "We'll see what all the property owners think about it first."

The proposal has not been put up to the city hall officially.

Mr. Simpson believes that a pedestrian way such as he proposes might eventually develop into the first unit of a comprehensive traction subway system.

2 Die When Plane Falls at National Guard Circus

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Lieut. Schuyler Priestley, a forestry patrol flyer, and Private John S. Avey Jr. of the Washington National Guard were killed when their airplane went into a tail spin at a height of 500 feet during a national guard air circus here today.

PRESIDENT ISSUES PROCLAMATION FOR FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Concern over the increase in the nation's fire loss, which in recent months has been the heaviest in history, is expressed by President Coolidge in his annual fire prevention week proclamation.

The proclamation, made public today, recommended that the week beginning Sunday, Oct. 4, be observed as national fire prevention week. Appealing to state and municipal officials, civic organizations, school authorities and all citizens and organized bodies for fullest coöperation in improving conditions, the President declared that there is need "for earnest study of the principles of fire protection as a practical measure of national economy."

MYSTERY HURTS ARE BLAMED ON UNION TROUBLES

Union difficulties or a rum runners' quarrel are believed by police to be the explanation for mysterious injuries received near Irving Park boulevard and Clark street early yesterday by a man who gave his name as Clarence Walker, 520 Grant place.

First hint of the trouble came to police from Sam Girag, 800 South Leavitt street, a taxi chauffeur, and Girag's passenger, Oscar Ebinger, 4157 North Crawford avenue. The two reported that they heard a shot and, investigating, found a hat containing a bullet hole lying upon the ground.

Later police were informed at Alexian Brothers' hospital that Walker appeared for treatment with several severe bruises about his head and body. He admitted ownership of the hat, saying two strangers had "taken him for a ride," shot at him, and forced him from the car for no apparent reason. Police doubt Walker's story.

Negro Burned at Stake by Mob at Scene of Attack

New Albany, Miss., Sept. 20.—(AP)—L. Q. Ivy, Negro, was burned at the stake by a mob which had taken him from officers near here this afternoon. Ivy, according to Sheriff John Roberts, confessed that he attacked the daughter of a farmer in the Etah community, 18 miles from here, on Friday. He was returned to the scene of the attack and burned to death.

Mexican State Taxes All Smokers in Public

Mexico City, Sept 20.—(AP)—A new decree has been enacted in the state of Tabasco imposing a tax on all persons who smoke in public or appear in public in an intoxicated condition. The police will demand evidence of the payment of this tax from anyone found intoxicated or smoking in the streets.

Girl Gained 7 Pounds
Nine Years an Invalid

That's just what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for the Babcock girl—and is doing as much for tens of thousands of thin, underweight, weak and discouraged people all over America.

These sugar coated, pleasant to take tablets should be given to children instead of the vile stomach upsetting oil itself—they surely do help the frail, delicate little ones and 60 tablets cost but 60 cents at Owl Drug Co., or any druggist anywhere in America.

Read this letter if you have a child that needs to gain health and strength.

"My little girl was stricken with infantile paralysis when she was 5 months old and was an invalid for 9 years—when I saw an ad in the paper that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets would build up wasted tissues. I bought a box and she gained very slowly at first and after taking eight boxes she gained seven pounds. Thanks to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, after trying almost everything else on the market. She is on the road to recovery and goes to school every day." Mrs. L. Babcock, Appleton, Wis.

Imitations of McCoy's may be offered but be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine, and if after thirty days' treatment you are not delighted with results—get your money back.

BRITISH WORKERS RAP KELLOGG FOR BARRING RADICAL

Crowds Cheer Saklatvala at Battersea.

(Picture on back page.)

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Shapurji Saklatvala, who was refused admission to the United States as a member of the British delegation to the conference of the interparliamentary union at Washington, was given an enthusiastic reception when he addressed his parliamentary constituents at Battersea tonight. Hundreds were unable to enter the meeting hall.

Alluding to the action of the American secretary of state, he said:

"If America were conquered by Japan, and Messrs. Coolidge and Kellogg did not utter the kind of speech I made (referring to his house of commons speech on India, cited by Secretary Kellogg), they would be despicable Americans. If they, on bended knees, worshiped the conquerors they would be despicable human beings.

Assails Rule in India.

"As long as the wicked and criminal rule of Great Britain in India, Africa and China continues the workers of the west will be in danger."

Mr. Saklatvala declared that his position and attitude were not discussed at a single meeting of the interparliamentary union. He charged "the boss classes" waited until his baggage had started for America, then like the allies, they had to send an S O S to America to win their battles for them, and, in response to the appeal, America adopted most unconstitutional and unreasonable methods. Secretary Kellogg, he said, had listened to all the women's gossip and surrendered to certain influences.

After the indoor meeting Mr. Saklatvala addressed a great gathering outside. The red flag was exhibited and revolutionary songs were sung, with cheers for "the workers' revolution."

Denounce U. S. for Ban.

The meeting unanimously adopted a resolution, proposed by a man who appeared to be an Indian, denouncing America's treatment of Mr. Saklatvala, repudiating "the false charges made by American officials," and expressing the hope that "the sense of honor and justice among the masses of America would ultimately prevail to permit Saklatvala to go to America."

Mr. Saklatvala said he had written to America, promising that if he went there he would not preach anarchy.

WILSON FEATURES ON POSTAGE STAMP FAIL TO WIN POSTOFFICE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—President Wilson's portrait is not to be placed on a special postage stamp to commemorate the anniversary of his birth next December, nor is it likely to appear on a stamp in the near future, it wos learned today from postal officials. Among the reasons given were that there were no new denominations of stamps in contemplation, that there already were too many classes, and that even though such a stamp was determined upon there was no money available for a special issue.

Norman H. Davis, president of the Woodrow Wilson foundation, with other friends of the late President, feels that a special postage stamp should be issued in December when Mr. Wilson's birthday anniversary will be commemorated.

SHOOTS RIVAL IN HOME.

Robert Holt, colored, returned to his home, 1709 West Lake street, yesterday, to find Enoch Love, also colored, 1700 West Lake street, visiting Holt's wife, Susie. Holt shot Love in the arm, and was arrested.

MEXICAN SLAIN BY POLICEMAN IN GUN BATTLE

Lying prone in an areaway next to 8918 The Strand, Sergt. John White of the South Chicago station yesterday shot and killed Ignacio Cantano, a Mexican poolroom proprietor. The latter had fired several times at the sergeant, one of the bullets grazing his leg.

Cantano's poolroom at 8910 The Strand was closed by the police several days ago when his license was revoked. He attributed the action to a plot by his business rival, Henry Derrientes, who conducts the poolroom at the address where the killing occurred.

Armed with a revolver, he went into Derrientos' place and accused him of causing the revocation. Derrientos denied the charge, and a fight followed. Sergt. White and Policemen O'Connor and Rooney reached the scene as Cantano fled out the front door and into the areaway. Sergt. White, in the lead, followed. Cantano fired and he fell to the ground, drawing his pistol. The shot which struck the officer's leg was fired as he lay on the ground.

FIRE AT DAILY NEWS.

A fire originating in a dynamo in the basement of the Chicago Daily News plant yesterday was extinguished before any damage was done by members of engine company No. 40.

Confesses Robbery to Get Money for Fiancee's Ring

Charles Cramer, 16 year old employé of the McLain oil station, 8085 South Chicago avenue, started police scouring the far south side yesterday when he reported that three colored bandits had taken $30 of the concern's money. The search was fruitless and Cramer, requestioned, said the robbers were white men. Further grilling resulted in a confession by the youth that he took the money to make the first payment on a diamond ring for his sweetheart.

STABS FROM ROBBERS FATAL.

John Carney, 57, 805 South State street, died last night at the county hospital of stab wounds inflicted by two colored bandits whose attempt to rob him at Polk and Clinton streets he resisted last Friday.

RMY AND NAVY ET TOGETHER ON WAR DRAFT PLAN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)— proposals for a selective service law to round out the national defense act have been referred to the joint board of the army and navy for ironing out disagreement between the services as to the form such legislation shall take. Both departments are hopeful that such a law will be enacted at the coming session of congress so they may have definite legal status for their power mobilization plans.

BRIG. GEN. DELAFIELD [Harris & Ewing.]

Members of the army officers' reve corps also are taking an inter- in this final step to complete the ilitary policy laid down in the de- act, Brig. Gen. John Rose Dela-, ordnance reserve and president the reserve officers' assocation, has municated the text of the army posals to the state departments the national council membership the organization in order to focus ention upon it.

No Provision for Men.

The original war department draft was prepared because of the need for such an act in working out de- ed mobilization plans for the army. The defense act supplies authority for peace time framework of the three army plan which has now been twice subjected to muster tests, but is silent as to where the man power to fill up the ranks would come from in an actual war emergency.

The first rush would come as volunteers, but in mapping out a schedule for progressive mobilization paralleling the industrial mobilization for which the act also provides, army experts found it necessary to assume that a selective service act would be passed.

Congressional committees did some work on the general project at the last session but gave their attention chiefly to American Legion suggestions that a blanket universal conscription act, applying to all forms of labor and capital, be enacted.

War department approval of the universal conscription theory was voiced to the committees, but it was pointed out that the army and navy were concerned only with man power for military purposes and did not feel qualified to go beyond that in laying defense plans.

The army's proposed selective service bill, now in virtually final shape, provides that after congress has declared a national emergency to exist, the President might proceed forthwith to draft for military service all male persons between 18 and 30 years of age or such other age limits as he might fixe "without deferment on account of industrial or agricultural occupation."

BRITAIN INSISTS CHINA MUST DO SOME REFORMING

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The British foreign office tonight issued the text of instruction forwarded to the British delegates attending the Chinese customs conference in Peking on Oct. 26, the document which is signed by Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, contains important statements regarding Great Britain's attitude on the Chinese question generally.

The note declares the British government regards the conference "as affording an opportunity for the treaty powers to show their real friendship for China and practical sympathy with the desire of the Chinese to reform their fiscal system and on such lines as will give reasonable security and encouragement to international trade." The government, therefore, welcomes the conference, "notwithstanding the recent disturbances, boycotts, and anti-British agitations."

Cites Lack of Strong Government.

The note points out that it will not fall within the British delegates' province to consider questions of extraterritorial jurisdiction, but remarks, "The British government is in sympathy with the general trend of Chinese aspirations in this matter."

Desiring that the extraterritorial commission should begin its work with as little delay as possible, the note points out that Great Britain will do whatever lies in its power to facilitate the task. The lack of an effective central government in China is stressed, and the note tells the delegates "it will therefore be one of your main concerns to secure adequate guarantees that reforms justifying the concessions you are authorized to make will be carried out."

Abides by Washington Pledges.

The British government, it is declared, is bound by no pledges, except those which all the signatory powers undertook at Washington.

"They are resolved to work in the spirit of the Washington conference and abide by the fundamental principle that whatever is done by a special conference should be done for the benefit of China."

The subject of consolidation of unsecured debts, which will confront the conference, the British government considers should be regarded only as a secondary part of the functions of the conference. It says it will consider the purpose of the conference unfulfilled unless it results in the adoption of measures promoting internal peace.

Must Solve Own Internal Troubles.

The note concludes: "His majesty's government desires the establishment of a united, independent, orderly, prosperous China, worthy of her historic past and giving a promise of its great future. It is for the Chinese themselves to solve the internal problems of China, but as far as British assistance may be practicable and may be desired, it is the earnest wish of his majesty's government to give such help as lies within their power."

MAYORS IN HARD COAL AREA ASK FOR "CHECKOFF"

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 20.—Mayors and burgesses of sixty cities and boroughs in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania have sent letters to the mine owners urging them to grant their employés the checkoff, said a statement issued tonight by the United Mine Workers.

The checkoff provides for the deduction of union dues by coal companies on the written consent of the miners and the turning it over to the local unions.

This action of official heads of cities and boroughs "is the most convincing proof of the virtue of the miners' demand for the adoption of the checkoff," said a statement by President John L. Lewis of the union.

CATCH MORON IN PARK WHEN GIRL SCREAMS

Michael Ferraro, 29 years old, 1656 West Monroe street, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Lieut. James Jay of West park police when he was attracted by the screams of Julia Cupinska, 14 years old, 612 North May street, who had been dragged into a clump of bushes in Union park at Ashland avenue and Lake street.

The girl and Ferraro had been friendly for more than a year, it was later learned, despite the objections of her father, Jacob Cupinska, who three weeks ago swore out a warrant for Ferraro's arrest after the young man had threatened his life for interfering with his association with the girl.

W. R. KIMSEY TO ENTER RACE FOR TREASURY POST

Walter R. Kimsey, Mount Carmel banker and former president of the Illinois Farmers' institute, yesterday announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for state treasurer in the April primaries. County Treasurer Joseph F. Kilduff of La Salle county also has announced his candidacy for the same office. Although he has made no formal announcement Garrett de Forest Kinney of Peoria, former chairman of the Republican state committee, a political ally of Chairman Frank L. Smith and for many years a downstate Deneen lieutenant, is regarded as a certain candidate for treasurer.

Big Men of Business Give Time to Advertising!!

Formerly, advertising was far down the list of subjects considered by the big executives. It was delegated to subordinates. The advertising budget was a fine object for the pruning knife.

Now, the big men who have control of business give thorough, patient consideration to advertising because it is part of the selling system and an important factor in increasing earnings. This change came because business is now so competitive and advertising when properly done is so genuinely productive.

We want executives to read our book, "Four Square Advertising." It helps a business man get a priceless new viewpoint of advertising and of a modern advertising agency. We gladly mail it free.

RIFFIANS FLEE FRENCH PLANES' RAIN OF BOMBS

Spaniards Repel Moorish Counter Move.

FEZ, French Morocco, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Today's activities were confined to the air service in the region of Loukkos, the district being subjected to an intense bombing, which would seem to foreshadow an important operation. The city of Chechaouen is almost completely evacuated by the Riffians, owing to the work of the airplanes, and Abd-el Krim's brother has transferred his headquarters to Tazrout, 20 miles to the north. All is quiet on the rest of the front.

Spaniards Repulse Riffs.

MADRID, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Spanish troops on the western front in the region of Kudia Monar disrupted an enemy attempt to construct a line of trenches in the path of the advancing Spaniards, an official communique announced today. It also reported that Moorish tribesmen were defeated in an engagement between Fondak and Regaia, suffering many casualties. Gen. Primo de Rivera has gone from Ceuta to the Alhucemas sector. Steel breast plates have been issued to the Spanish troops holding the front line trenches in the Melilla sector.

Rain Likely to End Drive.

[Copyright: 1925: By the United News.]

FEZ, Morocco, Sept. 20.—The question of whether the French can avoid a winter campaign against the hardy Riffians, whose resistance is still unconquered, despite the present offensive, is today the chief topic of conversation among military officers here.

The period before the rains will set in is getting shorter. Thousands of troops and long trains of supplies and equipment are constantly moving north toward the battle front. The French line has advanced appreciably in several places beyond that held in the spring. Aviation camps have moved forward. Air forces can continue action throughout the winter.

Danish Currency Rises to Within 8 Points of Par

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 20.—Denmark's currency is gradually returning to par, the present quotations being only 8 points below normal. The economist newspapers are urging that the national bank take steps to reinstitute parity, stressing the benefits and asking for a sign of some confidence.

FITZPATRICK IS RENAMED HEAD OF LABOR GROUP

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor for nineteen successive years, was reëlected yesterday without opposition. The other officers, all elected without opposition, are:

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], fourteenth year as vice president; E. M. Nockels, eighteenth year as recording and corresponding secretary; F. G. Hopp, financial secretary; Thomas F. Kennedy, treasurer; H. E. Scheck, reading clerk, and Charles Hayman, sergeant at arms.

Ald. Nelson was also selected as delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention at Atlantic City, Oct. 5, defeating George Koop, a Socialist. The only contest over the executive board resulted in the defeat of A. Overgarrd, a communist, in a field of six candidates for the five places on the board.

17 Quarts of Ink flowed from this old Parker

During 20 years in Uncle Sam's service

Yet hardier still, than his hardy ancestors, is the Parker Duofold of today

"IT'S STILL a real serviceable Geo. S. Parker Fountain Pen," writes Don L. Dyer from Sherman, Tex., and proves it by sending us the old pen itself.

It's the first vacation this Parker has had since it went to work for Mr. Dyer in the U. S. Post Service 20 years ago. A little sum of 25,000 handwritten letters, 40,000 money order receipts, and 10,000 registered letter receipts are to its credit. And when it was looking for more work in the meantime, its owner lent it to appreciative friends.

Naturally it worked up quite a thirst in its labor—17 quarts of ink by the count.

There are a host of these Parker patriarchs still on the job after 20 and 30 years, and longer. They are the forefathers of a hardy race of pens—they speak with quiet eloquence of Geo. S. Parker's skill and sincerity and success in making his products the worthy Custodians of his business honor.

And Mr. Parker's Duofold Pen of today is the highest achievement of his whole painstaking career:

Hand-size Grip, Over-size Ink Capacity, Invisible Filler, Free-Swinging Balance, 25-year Point; and the Black-tipped, Lacquer-red Barrel, so handsome to carry and hard to mislay.

Pen counters wouldn't be without it. It is ready there for you.

PIERCE-ARROW
COACH

—body by Pierce-Arrow

Have you driven the Custom-built Coach?

A great many Series 80 demonstrations have been given during the past few months. Even more than in the early days of the Pierce-Arrow Series 80. Performance in the hands of owners is now having apparent effect. They are enthusing to friends about how their Series 80's act. And so this endless chain of recommendation is growing and growing. So, too, sales and demonstrations have grown apace.

It is always a pleasure to demonstrate this beautiful Series 80 car. Nothing so surely impresses one with its power—its comfort—its safety, as a ride behind the steering wheel or as a passenger.

Then, too, it is a pleasure to point out the surprising economy records. For the Series 80, you know, is an economy car.

Gas, for instance, gives 15 to 17 miles per gallon—a saving and a sure indication of fine engineering. Tires give 15,000 to 20,000 miles quite commonly. And maintenance expense, according to owners, is unbelievably small. Being well built, adjustments are needed infrequently. And then, high speed tools and machines reduce both the time and the cost to an unusually low point. And, do not forget, Pierce-Arrow cars are built for many years of service.

We invite you to ride in a Series 80. A courteous driver will be placed at your service. Or you may take the wheel yourself. There is no obligation. Even a Pierce-Arrow is sold by demonstration. Call or phone us.

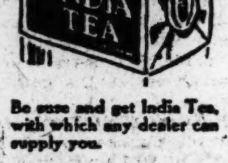
How to make

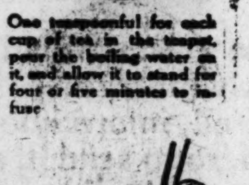
ICED INDIA TEA



Be sure and get India Tea, with which any dealer can supply you.

Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils.

One teaspoonful for each cup of tea in the teapot, pour the boiling water on it, and allow it to stand for four or five minutes to infuse



Fill the glass with three-quarters of ice, a slice of lemon, and pour the boiling tea on it, and sugar to taste.

ON the side of this announcement, we have explained to you how to make Iced India Tea. Half the world's supply of Tea comes from India, and therefore half the Tea drunk in the world is India Tea.

Its great vogue in most countries has been created by the quality and aroma of the Tea itself. There is no Tea comparable with it.

Most dealers sell it, and if your dealer has not got it, he will get it for you. He will have no trouble. Insist upon India Tea and you will get India Tea. Make it according to directions, either hot or cold, and there is no more stimulating or refreshing drink.

OFFENSIVE STRENGTH.

The scoring is on a point system, based on the official averages. Batting includes only straight hitting. Long hits are figured on their relative value in scoring runs. Waiting includes bases on balls, getting hit and the like. Speed includes stealing, taking extra bases on hits. Other factors include points of value, such as working pitchers and hitting behind runners.

Position values of outfielders. Figures on the number of chances count comparatively low in dope strengths. Fielding includes ability to catch flies and field grounders, throwing includes not only throwing to bases but accuracy and quickness. Speed is ability to cover ground in backing up plays and in cutting off extra bases by fast work. The other factors are the ability to make plays and think.

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Pittsburgh draws first blood in the world's series dope. The comparative strength of the rival outfields that are to engage in the series this fall reveals the fact the Pirates have a stronger, faster, more coherent and better balanced combination, exceeding the Senators in hitting power, in speed, and, oddly enough, because it is unusual, in better defensive work

The difference in the outfields is not great. They are two fine organizations, but the figures reveal the fact the Pirates have a slight shade.

The attacking strength of both teams is largely in their outfields, and the Pittsburgh trio is better balanced and stronger even than I imagined. The analysis was a surprise to me. I had expected the American leaguers to show considerable superiority, due to experience, yet the only point I can find in which they excel is in the speed and accuracy with which they return balls to the infield.

Senators Fast with Ball.

Washington's outfielders excel any others in the leagues in getting the ball back to the right spot in a hurry. They have a fine system, which we will study later, of breaking throws, and of throwing to particular spots for relays, which Pittsburgh lacks. In a close series, as the coming one promises to be, this may count heavily in breaking rallies.

These comparative figures do not mean, necessarily, the Pittsburgh trio are heavier, longer hitters than those of Washington. They mean, pitted against the run of the mine pitchers of the National league, they are better than Washington's outfielders are against the average American league pitchers.

Goslin, in comparison with Barnhart, is a harder and more dangerous hitter, is faster, and a better base runner, although for more apt to blunder. Goslin, without Harris to handle him, probably would be a minor leaguer, but under Harris he is a near-great ball player until he thinks he is thinking.

In comparing the right fields the tasks becomes complicated. Harris will use whichever outfield combination seems to fit best against a particular pitcher. Veach, bought from Boston, is playing better even than he did with Detroit, and if either McNeely or Joe Harris is used in his stead, with Rice switching to fit them into the combination, it must be with the idea of strengthening the attack. To compute the real position strength of Washington in right field we must calculate each at his greatest value.

Cuyler Has Everything.

Cuyler, a sensational youth, with speed, hitting power, long driving ability, brilliant base running, aggressiveness and everything except long experience, is a better man than any right fielder Washington has—but whether he is better than the best of any combination Harris may choose is yet to be figured.

To attempt to compare Rice and Carey as outfielders and as ball players is a difficult task. Both are great players. Carey is one who, by hard work, attention to his business and conservation of energy, has improved steadily during his dozen years in the big leagues. He is better now than he ever has been before.

Carey just tops Rice in every department of the game and leads by a considerable margin on long hits. The truth is Carey is not as strong a hitter as this year's figures would seem to indicate. The indications are he will not be the hitter against Washington's pitchers he has been this year against the National twirlers.

Watrous Shoots 69; Leads in Practice for Tourney Today

Several hundred golf fans journeyed to the Olympia Fields Country club yesterday to watch three score professionals practice for the Professional Golfers' association's annual national tournament, which begins today.

Most of the 67 men who were eligible to play in today's qualifying rounds were on courses three and four. Many of them made poor or medium scores. A high wind added strokes to almost every card.

Watrous Shoots a 69.

Al Watrous, young pro from Grand Rapids, Mich., shot a 69 on number three course. Par for that links is 70. Watrous got four birdies on the first nine. His thirty-three was two under par. On the in nine the Grand Rapids flash needed 36 strokes, or one more than par. Yet his 69 was the best score of the day.

The 67 professionals who are assembled to play in the tournament have qualified for that honor in sectional tournaments throughout the country. Today the 67 will be whittled to 31 players and they, with Walter Hagen, the defending champion, will start on match play tomorrow. Here's Dope on the 1925 Pennant Races at a Glance

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Pittsburgh today is seven and a half games ahead of New York. If the Giants should win all of their remaining eleven games, the Pirates would have to win only four of their remaining ten to clinch the pennant. The final standing in that case would be:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Pittsburgh	94	60	.610
New York......................	93	61	.607

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Washington is now in the lead, eight games ahead of Philadelphia. If the Athletics should win all of their remaining twelve games, the Senators would have to win five of their remaining twelve to win the flag. The final standing in that case would be:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Washington	97	57	.630
Philadelphia	96	58	.623

Southern League Season Ends; Atlanta Wins Flag

New Orleans, La., Sept. 20.—(AP)—The Southern association's 1925 baseball season passed into history today with Atlanta the champion. New Orleans was second and Nashville third.

Alert, Nancy Yacht Victors

A water carnival which attracted all classes of crafts from the city's yachting and boating clubs held the attention of thousands at the Municipal pier yesterday. The regatta, held under the auspices of the Norwegian National league, which staged its Lief Erickson festival at the pier yesterday, was featured by the sailing events, twenty-three ships competing.

In the pup class, George Harvey, piloting Alert, sailed the four and one-half nautical mile course in 51:19 to win, closely followed by Arab in 51:23. The other four starters finished close up.

Nancy Beats Tomboy.

Samuel Dauchy, skipper of his boat, Nancy, won the "R" class, seven and one-half miles event, handily in 1:01:55. William S. Taurot's Tomboy breezed in second in 1:02:35.

Gus Nylund's Springtime was first to finish in the Sewanhaka sloop class, in 1:04:26.

Kayoshk, skippered by George knots in 1:02:14, elapsed time. Fame, a schooner, sailing in the event for yawls and schooners, was clocked in 1:04:15, elapsed time.

In the "Q" class Leland Karas steered Siren to a victory over Virginia, the only other boat entered in the event, in 1:04:00.

Miner's Crew Wins Shell Race.

The eight oar shell race, in which the crews of Charlie Miner and Gilbert Shannon competed, furnished the biggest thrill in the rowing and canoeing events, Miner's crew winning by two-thirds of a length.

All events in the sculls and canoe races, with the exception of two won by Henry Workman, were taken by members of the Lincoln Park Boat club. Workman is a member of the Columbia Canoe club.

Miss Sybil Bauer, Miss Ethel Lackie, and Bob Skelton of the Illinois Athletic club staged exhibition swims as a part of yesterday's program.

Shade Battles Walker for Title Tonight

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—A challenge of two years' standing, resulting in months of controversy and a long suspension of the champion, will be answered tomorrow night by Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., when he steps into the ring at the Yankee stadium to defend his world's welterweight title against Dave Shade of California. It will be a fifteen round battle to a decision.

Reports from training quarters of the contestants today placed the weight of each man as well under the limit of 147 pounds. Each therefore can put in the day of the fight in resting until the gong calls them to the ring at 10 o'clock, eastern daylight time.

Both radiated confidence. Shade forecast a knockout before the ninth round. Walker said he had nothing to fear from a man against whom he twice had acquitted himself with credit before he lifted the championship from Jack Britton three years ago. Walker toady continued to rule a slight favorite.

Walker reported a slight cold, but his trainers confidently expected the last traces of the ailment would pass before tomorrow night.

BOUTS AT EAST CHICAGO

Ernie Owens, the California light heavyweight under the management of Jack Kearns, and Ad Stone of Philadelphia top the card of boxing bouts at East Chicago tonight. Owens and Stone are scheduled to go ten rounds and weigh in at 175 pounds.

Stone still remains a slight favorite over Owens. The general opinion is that the Philadelphia boxer knows a little too much about the game, defense especially.

Jimmy McDermott of Terre Haute, Ind., will trade punches with "Tiger Jack" Burns of California in the ten round semi-windup. Other bouts on the card bring together Frankie Welch and Joe Bashara; Kid Staver and Steve Adams, Emil Baksic and Shuffle Callahan, and Buster Sariano and Ernie Peters.

The show will open at 8:15 o'clock and a special train will leave the Randolph street terminal of the Illinois Central at 6:40 o'clock this evening, city time.

Gene Tunney, the American light heavyweight champion, and Manager Billy Gibson passed through Chicago yesterday on their way to St. Paul, where Tunney will meet Bartley Madden in a ten round bout on Friday night. Manager Gibson asserted Harry Wills will not meet Tunney and that Manager Mullens will sign with the New York boxing commission for a Dempsey match.

* *

Archie Bell of New York and Harold Smith of the stockyards, who meet in part of the double windup of the show at Aurora on Friday night, will settle down to active training at Mullen's today.

Trains on Golf

Dave Shade, challenger for the welterweight championship of the world, who meets Mickey Walker, present title holder, tonight, keeps in training by playing golf. And unless appearances are deceiving this recent photo indicates that he has found golf mighty good training.

Jimmy Ford, Purple Guard, Is Ineligible

JIM FORD.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Jimmy Ford, a member of the 1924 Northwestern grid squad and counted on to remain on the varsity in a regular or reserve capacity, is ineligible, it was learned yesterday. Ford, who was one of the few guards trying out for the Northwestern eleven, took a botany examination Friday, and yesterday he was informed that the prof. had landed a knockout blow.

Sunday was a day of rest for the fifty Purple candidates. After having been driven in three hard sessions a day since last Tuesday morning, the coaches and players let up until this afternoon. The second week will be even stiffer than the first, Thistlethwaite promises, and scrimmage will begin in earnest either tomorrow or Wednesday.

The alumni had their one chance to see a practice Saturday and from now on all drills will be secret. The coach believes his men have faced enough cameras and been interviewed often enough. Classes begin Thursday morning, and after Wednesday the morning practices will be discontinued and afternoon drill will begin as soon as the men are able to reach the field.

MAROONS REST

Sunday was a day of rest for the Maroons, but today will be a different tale. Coach Stagg will start this week teaching his grid players formations and the basis for the set of plays he will use in games this year. Last week was devoted almost entirely to fundamentals and all of the players came out of the heavy work in good shape.

RULE ON PUNTS IS INTERPRETED BY ECKERSALL

Fourth Down Seen as Danger Point.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

The new football rule governing blocked punts which do not cross the scrimmage line will place a greater premium on the art of protecting the kicker and result in more punting on third downs.

Provisions of this rule make any punt which is blocked behind the scrimmage a free ball. If the oval is recovered by the kicking team, the down advances, and if it is recovered by the blocking eleven, it is their ball at the spot of recovery.

It will be seen that if a team waits until the fourth down to punt, and the attempt is blocked by the defense and recovered by one of the kicking team, the ball goes to the opponents at the spot of recovery.

Importance Shown in Play.

The importance of this point was shown in a high school game last Saturday in which the writer officiated. Lake View attempted a punt on its forty yard line on the fourth down The attempt was blocked by New Trier and recovered by Lake View on its thirty yard line. As a result of the new rule, the ball went to New Trier, which advanced it to the twenty yard line and then scored a drop kick for the only marker of the game.

The play is so important that coaches must determine on one of two things. They must instruct their captains to kick on third downs when the ball is deep in their territory, or they must evolve iron clad defenses for their kickers when punts are attempted on fourth downs.

Rule on Blocked Kicks.

The other half of the rule deals with partially blocked kicks which cross the scrimmage line. If any punted balls are partially blocked back of the line of scrimmage, and then cross the scrimmage line, they are to be played as if the blocking never happened. If the ball strikes one of the kicking team who has crossed the line of scrimmage, he is offside and the ball goes to the receiving team at the spot of foul. The receiving eleven, however, may decline the penalty and run with the ball.

At the start of a game, the winner of the toss has one of three choices. He may elect to receive or kick off, or he may choose a certain goal. If he selects the goal, the loser has the choice of kicking off or receiving. If the captain who calls the toss elects to kick, the loser has choice of goal and will naturally say he will defend a certain goal.

As the rule stands, the winner of the toss has one of three choices and the loser two.

AL WATERS WINS U. S. DIRT TRACK CHAMPIONSHIP

Al Waters, driving a Fronty Ford, won the 100 mile American championship, feature of the automobile races held yesterday at the Hawthorne race track under the auspices of the International Motor Contest association. Waters, who led from start to finish, covered the ten mile deciding heat in 8:24 1-5.

Victory of Waters was entirely unexpected and the fact he defeated Sig Haugdahl, places him in the foremost rank of American dirt track drivers. Haugdahl, who drove his Miller eight in a row special, tried to hang to the fast pace set by Waters but was gradually distanced and finished about 300 yards behind the victor. Al Coty in an Elcar was third, and Cliff Woodbury in a special Peugeot was fourth.

Speeding Car Goes Through Fence.

Eddie Dailey, who piloted a Simplex and who gave Haugdahl an interesting race in one of the qualifying thirty mile heats, barely escaped serious injury in the final race when his car went through the back fence on the first lap.

The 100 mile event was decided in three preliminary heats of thirty miles each with a ten mile final. The first two cars in each heat qualified for the final test. The first heat was won by Waters with Dewey Shank in a Rex special in second place.

Burt Wins Second Race.

Andy Burt, seated in a Peugeot, won the second race and Carl Adams, in a Dodge Special, finished second. The third race was won by Sig Haugdahl in his Miller eight while Eddie Dailey in a Simplex was second.

In the final race of ten miles Waters took the lead at the drop of the flag, closely followed by Haugdahl, with Coty in third place and Cliff Woodbury, who replaced Andy Burt in the Peugeot, driving in fourth position. They retained these positions for the entire ten miles, with Waters increasing his lead on every lap.

Haugdahl, although deprived of some of his honors, gave a startling exhibition in his Wisconsin Special which he drove around the oval in :46 2-5 for a new track record.

The races attracted a gathering estimated at 12,000.

CANADIANS AND PULLMAN BEATEN IN SOCCER UPSETS

The opening day of the major soccer league proved to be a rough one on the champions, both Pullman, Peel cup and league champions, and the Canadian club, western titleholders, meeting unexpected defeats.

Bob Hannah's revamped Thistles provided the biggest surprise of the day when they handed Pullman a neat 3 to 1 drubbing at 47th avenue and 19th street. With the score knotted at 1 to 1 at the start of the second half, the Thistles spurted. A penalty kick by Manager Hannah and a goal by Paxton gave them victory.

The Olympias also crossed the dopesters by taking the measure of the Canadian club, 1 to 0, at De Paul field.

Sparta was the only favorite to come safely through the day's play. They faced the Bricklayers at 27th street and Kostner avenue. After trailing 2-0 after thirty minutes of play, they came back with a rush to win, 5 to 3.

CHATT BREAKS CASTING RECORD

With an average cast of 263 1-5 feet and a long cast of 285 feet, George Chatt broke his old record for the ⅝ ounce distance event yesterday in the weekly tournament of the Illinois Casting club at Washington park. His old mark was 247 feet average and 260 feet long cast. William Stanley was runner-up with an average of 252 feet and a long cast of 269 feet.

Stanley also won the ⅝ ounce accuracy event, the ¼ ounce accuracy, tied with CcCandless for first place in the dry fly accuracy, and with McCandless and Lane in the 5¾ ounce fly event. H. Chatt took the ¼ ounce accuracy.

S. HEBERT TOPS AURORA JOCKEYS

Brings Home Winners on Any Kind of Track.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—As the second week of the autumn racing season gets under way, S. Hebert, a younster from New York, is threatening to make a runaway race of the jockey championship.

He has been booting his share of winners home over every sort of track. The veteran Arthur Pickens has been meeting with more success than other older pilots.

Neal, Vesseli, and Colen Shine.

L. Neal, Vesseli, J. Colen, and three or four others are still in the title fight. V. Swanson was showing promise when his career came to an abrupt end after he was ruled off, following an attack on Starter Harry Morrisey.

Except for the good riding of young Mr. Hebert, the first days of the meeting had little to offer in a racing way because of the wretched track conditions. With the running strip in good shape again the better grade horses should begin to show in the entries.

May Hang Up Another Purse.

Because such good juveniles as Chicago, Cartoon, Miss Thatcher, Tamale Dick, and Frazer did not accept the issue in the Chicago handicap, officials of the local jockey club may decide to hang up another good sized stake in an effort to settle supremacy among the baby racers. Thunder Shower is the leading candidate on her victory in last Saturday's handicap, but many doubt if she is the best quartered here.

Ladies' day will be observed tomorrow as usual.

DE PAUW GRIDDER HURT; MAY DIE

Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Injuries received in football practice Saturday afternoon at De Pauw university by Maynard Gable of Elkhart, a freshman, may cause his death. Either his spine was severed or two vertebrae crushed. He is almost completely paralyzed, being able to move his hands only slightly.

ENTRIES BEGIN TO ARRIVE FOR GOLF DRIVING CONTEST

BY MORROW KRUM.

Entries for THE TRIBUNE's golf ball driving contest, to be held in Lincoln Park next Sunday, began to arrive at the Tribune Tower yesterday.

Art Sweet, hard hitting amateur, was the first golfer to list his name. Sweet is the champion of the Edgewood golf club. His tee shots are accurate as well as long.

The second to enter was Leo Murray, professional at the Galewood Golf club Murray will be the first to shoot from the tee at the foot of Waveland avenue, not far from Sheridan road, at 10 o'clock next Sunday morning. Friends say his shots will average somewhere between 275 and 325 yards.

Another professional to enter is Gunnar Nelson. In the tournament at Briergate last week Nelson was credited with having hit a ball 365 yards from the sixteenth tee. Nelson will be the second pro to exhibit his prowess in the contest.

Any Golfer Eligible.

As outlined in yesterday's announcement, the contest is open to all. Any golfer who has a good long tee shot will be welcomed if he will write the Golf Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Tribune Square. There will be two contests, one for professionals and one for amateurs. The pros will start at 10 o'clock in the morning and the amateurs about noon. The public is invited to watch them without charge.

Entrants will not have to furnish the balls. Yesterday Glenn Morris, advertising manager for Thomas E. Wilson & Co., athletic goods, announced his firm would furnish sufficient Pinehurst golf balls for the contest.

Cash Prizes and Trophies.

The rules are not intended to mean that only men who make their living by playing or teaching golf may enter the open contest. Anyone who desires may try for the first prize of $200, the second of $50, and the third of $25. You may never have played in a tournament, but three long tee shots may win the money for you.

The amateur contest will have for a first prize a handsome silver loving cup. Second prize will be a silver medal. Any amateur is eligible.

Both distance and accuracy will be counted. Each golfer will drive three balls from the tee and the average of the three will determine the result.

State Urges Hunters to Get Club Licenses

BY BOB BECKER.

Clubs and individuals who have leased or own land for the purpose of shooting water fowl are urged by the state conservation department to get their club licenses. The cost of this license is ten dollars for each hunting season. Clubs are requested to secure applications from the conservation department in Springfield. The exact location of the organization taking out a license is required on the application.

Another item which the gun clubs in this state are taking care of is a register in which the number of birds killed by members is recorded so that at the end of the season a complete record of the daily bombardments will be available for the state conservation department.

According to reports from the Illinois river country, the shotgun fans have been enjoying a good time since the opening date. A few ducks and jacksnipes are on deck, more elusive and trickier than ever. The limit on jacksnipe is 15 a day. The law also puts a limit of 15 on yellow legs and plover.

New Direct Auto Trail to Florida Open for Travel

BY J. L. JENKINS.

The opening this month of the new 22 foot concrete road between Corbin and Barbourville in Kentucky has removed the last really serious obstacle in the new direct route between Chicago and Florida via the East Dixie highway, according to reports from Kentucky and Tennessee.

Jack Graham, chief pilot of the Chicago Motor club who is now investigating southern highways, reported yesterday that the only remaining gap in the series of improved roads linked in the route is a short stretch between Berea and Mount Vernon, Ky. The detour is due to be lifted by Sept. 27. The route will then be completely open for all weather travel via Danville, Indianapolis and Cincinnati or via Marshall, Fort Wayne, Vincennes, French Lick, Louisville, and Lexington. It leads south from Lexington to Knoxville, Chattanooga, and Atlanta and on to Lake City, Fla.

The report also shows steady improvement on the original Dixie highway, which will celebrate its tenth anniversary next month. This route is via Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville, and Chattanooga. By November the new road on the original Dixie between Whitwell and Pittsburgh, Tenn., will be opened. Completion of the five mile stretch between Crothersville and Seattsburg will put the direct trail in excellent shape all the way.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

The New York Giants may be out the pennant race but their cham ship spirit which carried them ugh four times in succession, will die. That spirit combined with championship hitting, brought ry to them over the Cubs yester 6 to 2, in the final game of the ies and it also jammed the strug Cubs back into the cellar.

As the Pirates were idle, the Giants ked up a half a game on them, but y are seven and a half combats be d with only elevent left to play, so thing but a miracle can get them to e top before the closing bell rings. wever, one has to admire their fight g spirit in carrying on so gamely h such a hopeless battle.

Meusel Stars at Bat.

To gain the victory yesterday, they mmed out fifteen base hits against two Cub pitchers. Irish Meusel was e heroic swatter of the crew with r wallops in five times up. He poled e homer into the right field bleacher, ked two singles and finally wrecked e game in the seventh by a two ger with two mates on the paths. Mr. Guy Bush was removed from the lab soon after that wrecking blow and Percy Jones came forth and fin ed.

Mr. Fred Fitzsimmons, recently of the Indianapolis club, was the New York hurler, and though tagged for eleven blows by the young Cubs, he was strong or lucky in the pinches and a crowd of Cubs were left stranded on the bases.

Homer Gives Giants Lead.

Meusel's homer came in the first with two out and started the Giants off in front. In the second Long George Kelly led off with a double and galloped home when Southworth singled. Mr. Bush then tightened up and stopped all attacks for a spell, and in the sixth the Cubs turned on the New Yorkers and tied the score.

Young Mr. Jahn started it with a triple and came home when young Mr. Munson punched a single over second. Grimm followed with a single to right and counted when Gonzales forced the Rabbit at second.

Immediately following that, the Giants went on a rampage. Young doubled, Frisch beat out a single and both scored on Meusel's double. Terry walked. Jones relieved Bush and Kelly singled, filling the bases. The Cubs then turned a double play, letting Meusel score, after which Jackson rolled out.

ANDEES EVEN SERIES.

Johnson and Peck Injured as Champs Beat Sox, 6 to 5

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Titular class asserted itself against today and the repeating Senators moved a notch nearer their coveted goal by defeating the White Sox in a ten inning struggle, 6 to 5.

Victory was not without its price, however. Walter Johnson, who started the tussle, had to retire when he injured his left leg and a similar setback forced the veteran Roger Peckinpaugh, keystone of the Senators' defense, out of action.

After a bad first inning Johnson steadied and was sailing along smoothly with a 3 to 2 advantage. Then he took a hand in a two run rally in the seventh and while running bases pulled a muscle, so Iron Horse Marberry took up the task and the Sox hammered him for three runs in the eighth that tied the score.

Boss Collins Pinch Hitter.

In his anxiety to delay the pennant clinching by the Senators, Boss Collins inserted himself as well as three hurlers into the center of the argument. The boss' appearance consisted only of a time at bat, in the eighth, his first effort since his injury four weeks ago. He hit the ball right on the nose, but it sailed into the hands of Peck at short.

The first of the Sox hurlers to fail was Jim Edwards, the ex-Indian southpaw. The champs crowned him for two runs in the second inning to even up for a pair registered by the Sox in the first. Then Connally made his almost daily appearance, and before he left the scene the Senators had a 3 run lead. Lastly came Ted Blankenship, who pitched a tight ninth inning and then lost the argument in the tenth when Judge opened with a double and scored on a single by Spencer Adams, who had taken Peck's place.

Sox Score Early.

The Sox got the jump on Johnson in the first round, because the old fellow was wild. He walked Davis, whereupon Barrett tripled and Sheely singled.

In the seventh Connally opened with a ticket to Johnson. Rice doubled and, in going to third on this hit, something exploded in Johnson's left thigh. He managed to score, however, on Stanley Harris' fly.

Marberry started so wabbly in the eighth that for a few minutes the 18,000 patrons had visions of a complete rout. A pass to Sheely, a hit by Falk and an error scored one. Mostil also strolled and after Falk advanced on Kamm's bunt, Crouse drove both home with a hit tying the score and the session ended with Collins batting for Connally.

It was in the home half of the inning that Peck put his leg on the bum, while running to first.

Vitralite Automobile Enamel System

At last—your car painted in one week!

Your car can be painted in one week, with the Vitralite Automobile Enamel System, but that is the least of its advantages. The beautiful, lustrous finish produced by this simple, modern method lasts longer than paint and varnish, equally as long as lacquer and costs less than either!

Vitralite Automobile Enamel is a quality finish for quality cars, but so quickly and easily is it applied, that the price of a Vitralite finish is within the reach of all.

Although new, Vitralite is not a "trick" or "stunt" finish. It is thoroughly practical and dependable. That is why there are thousands of delighted Chicago motorists whose cars are finished with it. The better auto painters in all sections of the city are using the Vitralite Automobile Enamel System. See one of these painters today.

Telephone us, Victory 1800 - 1801 - 1802 - 1803 or 1804 for the name and address of the paint shop in your vicinity, using the Vitralite Automobile Enamel System.

SUITS take a two-fold way to smartness—two-piece and two fabrics. Here in a vivid little coat of velveteen with a frock of gayly plaided fabric. There in a long coat of cloth deeply furred and an exquisite frock of silk.

Fourth Floor, North and South.

COATS of rich fabrics enriched by furs allow a greater latitude for choice than in many a season past. From the coat of smooth cloth, knee deep with soft fur, whose lines at once cling and flare, to those of sturdy tweeds with hardy furs one goes—and ever there is a clever detail.

Fourth Floor, North and South.

NEGLIGEES, lest one forget the grace there lies in length, trail their chiffons and laces. Tea gowns show the "golden touch" of the season in metal broches and velvet brocades. Debonair little boudoir coats of soft satin crepes are edged about in a frill of feathers.

HATS—once again they are the climax of the costume—harmonizing or contrasting, summing up in their lines and colors the theme of the apparel they accompany. Here in the French Shop are presented the highly distinguished versions of new fall millinery.

Fall Opening 1925

This event, beginning on Monday September twenty-first and continuing throughout the week, gives introduction to the best in the new fashion as it concerns frocks, coats, wraps, furs, suits, hats and the important accessories of dress. Each mode seems vested with a personality quite its own ··· all are distinguished by that enduring charm which comes from a real understanding of the fine and beautiful Selections made at this time are assured success

FROCKS herald a "Golden Age" for fashion—and, like the famed Golden Age, it will be an epoch of rare beauty. Lines ripple with charming grace in frocks of Burgundy velvet shot with golden threads.

Frocks of pale green chiffons trail their laces of gold-tinted meshes. White chiffon as supple as gauze is studded with golden beads. Even the dark-toned frocks for daytime occasions have telling touches of gilded leathers flashing buttons, swinging little half capes often lined in glowing color.

Fourth Floor, North.

SILKS add silvered threads to their gold-color weaves and play over and over again the major theme of the new season. Velvets so soft they have an almost fluid quality have promise of great vogue.

Wool fabrics achieve richness by a wondrous depth of color and by design expressed in novel weaves and elaborately embroidered borders.

Second Floor, North.

WRAPS have all the alluring graces of the mode in their shimmering jewel-toned velvets. Broad bandings of beads, brilliant, beautiful, define their flowing lines. Frillings fluff at the collar.

Coats, too, take on wrap-like lines—often by means of deep fur bandings which flare across the front—and again by furs which make half the sleeves and all of the collar. The softer, more feminine phase of this season's fashion is interpreted with great skill in these coats and wraps.

Fourth Floor, North and South.

FURS, too, follow the flare of fashion. Peltries of wondrous softness, flexible as tissue in the hands of the master furrier, emerge into coats whose rippling, graceful lines are truly marvelous.

For a more strenuous service the hardier furs adhere to straighter lines, often emphasized by bandings and collars of furs to contrast.

Fourth Floor, East.

LINGERIE lovely with laces and hand-work achieves "lines" by a skilful handling of soft silken fabrics. Colors run the range from pale pink to glowing yellow.

The Pearl Headed Pin

By ROY VICKERS

BLUE RIBBON FICTION
Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.

SYNOPSIS.

Henry Ledway and his partner, John Selkirk, are accused of murdering a business rival. Ledway is supposed to have died in a railroad wreck. Selkirk serves twenty years in prison. Upon his release he informs Ledway's wife and her present husband, Colonel Hallett, that neither he nor Ledway was guilty. The Halletts are remodeling their London home and Mrs. Hallett goes there to meet the contractor, Edward March. Ledway appears and threatens her with blackmail. Colonel Hallett arrives and Ledway, trying to escape, falls through an open shaft. The colonel, unable to find the body, holds his wife's story of the occurrence a hallucination. March, it develops later, slits Ledway's throat, mutilates the face and throws the body into the river with papers of his own in a pocket. He then adopts permanently his frequent disguise as Cornboise, an art dilettante, and drops from sight as March. Ledway's body is taken from the river. It is identified by Ray Bristowe, a suitor of Mrs. Hallett's daughter, Joan, as that of March, his uncle, by means of the papers. The police hunt Selkirk, suspected of killing March.

A pearl headed pin found on the body, which Ledway had taken from Mrs. Hallett, is identified as hers. Fearing that she and her husband will be accused if the dead man is identified as Ledway, she testifies at the inquest that she had given the pin to March. The confidence of her husband and Joan is further shaken by the news that March willed a fortune of 250,000 pounds to Mrs. Hallett.

"Cornboise," with whom Joan plans to open a modiste's shop, calls and Mrs. Hallett recognizes him as March. He reveals that he named her in the will so he might get the money back following his disappearance by blackmailing her. Mrs. Hallett forces him to shelter Selkirk by threatening to call in police. To reconcile her parents Joan tells her father that Mrs. Hallett has offered the money to Bristowe, and that the latter has declined it. She visits Bristowe, who has decided to accept it, to gain his refusal. Misunderstanding, he scorns her, even when she tells him she reciprocates his love, though he agrees to decline the money.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

JOAN TURNS INQUISITOR.

Joan was too young to realize that youth itself had defeated her. An older woman, conscious of the difficulty of the whole situation, would have handled it with humility and given her confession of love the setting it deserved. Joan, too sure of herself, had used that difficult weapon, honesty, and used it crudely. And, for all her modernity, she knew so pitifully little of the mentality of the modern man!

She stifled the desire because she knew it would be reaction that drove her; but she decided that if, when she was able to think clearly again, she still felt a strong wish to see this man, she would go and see him. She would only go once, for she had been sincere enough when she told her mother that she accepted the adverse verdict upon him; and, besides, there was always that subtle sense of danger coloring all her thoughts of him and warning, insistently, that part of her brain which was shrewd and quick and clear. . . . Still, to go once committed her to nothing. And she had visited him at his flat before—though certainly only on business, and not alone.

But what about that extraordinary stuff he talked on the phone? Up till this moment she had forgotten it! She reconsidered it now from every point of view, and her mystification increased.

"Mumsie, are you ill?"

Her mother had expressed intense dislike of Cornboise, had then asked him to report on his return to his flat with someone unnamed, and had promised him five thousand pounds!

The cab slowed as it turned into a main thoroughfare and Joan's eyes fell upon a flaring poster.

SEARCH FOR SELKIRK.

Inquest on Edward March. Full Report.

Selkirk!

Understanding hit Joan like a blow between the eyes. It was Selkirk who had gone with Cornboise to his flat; it was for Selkirk that five thousand pounds were needed—presumably to get him out of the country. But then—how was it possible that her mother could dislike Cornboise so intensely if she was in league with him to shelter a man for whom the police were already searching?

"She might be pretending to dislike him in the hope that that would keep me out of his company for a bit—keep me from knowing too much," Joan thought.

The mystery hurt. But then, everything hurt.

"How did Mumsie manage to impress Cornboise so strongly with Selkirk's innocence? If it comes to that, how does Mumsie herself know that Selkirk is innocent? Or is Selkirk guilty, and are Mumsie—and Cornboise—afraid of his being caught?"

A cold finger touched Joan's heart.

She was glad when her cab stopped; it had changed from a haven to a prison into which she was shut with thoughts she dared not harbor. Musn't think of Ray, musn't think about Selkirk, musn't think——

"Oh, it's you?" her father's voice greeted her. He bore down upon her across the pavement, smiling broadly. "I'll take your cab on. Care to come with me?"

"I don't expect so, parent. But you can pay my fare, all the same. Where are you toddling off to?"

"Cook's. I'm going to take your mother south for a week or two. She is absolutely done up. Try to persuade her to start tomorrow if I can book comfortable seats on the Blue train."

"Good idea!" Joan turned into the building and walked slowly up to the flat.

In the hall, Harcourt met her.

"Mrs. Hallett was enquiring whether Mr. Cornboise had rung up, Miss Hallett. I told Mrs. Hallett——"

"O, yes. I'll give mother the message. Where is she?"

"In her bedroom, Miss Hallett."

Joan had never before braced herself with a meeting with her mother, but she braced herself now. She was rehearsing what she had to say as she went down the short corridor and tapped on the door.

Mrs. Hallett was lying down. She had taken off her black gown and put on a loose robe of white. Against the pillow her white hair showed like ivory, and so drawn was her face that Joan forgot her opening words and exclaimed:

"Mumsie! Are you ill?"

"No, dear."

Mrs. Hallett turned and as soon as Joan met her eyes her concern vanished. In the eyes was a fierce strength, a strength that was just now concentrated on defense.

Joan re-embarked on her set speech.

"It's all right about Ray. He'll refuse the money—he was going to take it, so he's a bit sore. But the chief thing is, can you let him have a thousand pounds? He's promised it to a friend."

"I'll send a check tonight. . . . I suppose it's no good telling him I'm grateful?"

"Better not."

"Harcourt told me that Mr. Cornboise rang up," said Mrs. Hallett, after a pause which Joan refused to break.

"Yes, he did. I butted in because I thought you and Dads wouldn't want to be disturbed. A curious thing happened—he thought I was you and he said——"

She hesitated deliberately, hoping there would be no fear in her mother's eyes—and seeing it there even while she hoped. She sighed.

"He said: 'We arrived quite safely at my flat. You asked me to report, you remember? My part of the compact having been kept, I should like that five thousand tomorrow, please.' I've remembered it word for word, I think. Naturally, it made me curious."

Mrs. Hallett had turned away again.

"Yes." Her voice was half-stifled by the pillow. "Yes."

"Can't you explain at all, Mumsie?"

"No. I can't."

For the first time, Joan felt a desire to hurt her mother.

"I suppose," she said, "that the five thousand is to be spent on keeping Selkirk hidden somewhere?"

Mrs. Hallett pulled herself into a sitting position.

"Who told you that?" she whispered.

"I guessed. . . . Look here, Mumsie, I've been willing to be kept in the dark, haven't I? But is it quite playing the game to pretend to dislike Mr. Cornboise just to keep me conveniently out of his way for a bit?"

"Joanie! I—it's no pretense. I can tell you that, at least. Mr. Cornboise is a wicked man. Oh, I know it's a word you laugh at! But he is wicked—wicked!"

Joan was not laughing. She was trying to reconcile her mother's vehemence, obviously sincere, with those other tormenting doubts. She determined to put the doubts to the test.

"Please tell me this, if you can, Mumsie. Do you know Selkirk is innocent of murdering Mr. March? I mean, do you know it as a fact?"

"Yes." The word was a groan.

"You could only know that if you know who did murder March."

"It's no good pressing me, Joan."

"What I'm beginning to think," persisted Joan, relentlessly, "is that it is Mr. Cornboise."

Winchell Smith Play Is Turned Into Fine Film

"The Wheel" Well Acted, Staged, and Directed.

"THE WHEEL."
Produced by Fox.
Directed by Victor Schertzinger.
Presented at the Monroe Theater.

THE CAST.

Ted Morton	Harrison Ford
Kate O'Hara	Claire Adams
Baker	Mahlon Hamilton
Sammy	Georgie Harris
Nora	Claire Horton
Elsie	Margaret Livingston
Mr. Morton	David Torrence
Mrs. Morton	Julia Swayne Gordon
Dan Satterly	J. Russell Powell
Clara	Hazel Howell

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

"The Wheel?" Roulette wheel—nothing else BUT.

Winchell Smith wrote the play. John Golden produced it on the stage. Fox has adapted it to the screen—and done a good job.

The particular wheel referred to is located in a certain gambling club, frequented by young bloods and owned by a handsome gentleman of easy morals. It's not an honest wheel—and the house never loses.

When fate decrees that Baker, who owns it and young Morton who plays it, both become interested in the same girl, Baker manipulates it with fell intent, and disastrous are the results to Morton.

That you leave the theater happy is due to the fact that the good, supposed to lie latent in the worst of us, rises up and smites the conscience of Baker and causes him, on the stroke of twelve, so to speak, to right the wrong he has done.

The production is full of good acting, but if you ask me, the best of it is done by a small Hebrew somebody named Georgie Harris, whom I never saw before and pray to see soon again. A one time jockey for Baker who, besides being a gambler, is also a racing man, he is discovered in the picture, working in the millinery store of Miss Kate O'Hara, who is the girl in the case.

He is funny. He is clever. And from his lips fall the best lines of the piece. He's the tweezers that worries the deeply imbedded virtue in Baker to the surface.

Mahlon Hamilton is splendid as the smooth and crafty Baker. Harrison Ford, as the poor, weak, but awfully nice rich young man, does fine work. Claire Adams as the little milliner is a delight. David Torrence as young Morton's stern and distraught father has a rôle that suits him admirably and Julia Swayne Gordon as the mother gives one of her finished performances. She always knows just what to do! Wish we saw more of her.

There are several other persons in the cast you'll like a lot and "The Wheel" has been nicely staged and intelligently directed. It has some thrilling moments.

There's no doubt but that it will be a box office success—and there seems no reason why it shouldn't be.

See you tomorrow!

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question L. Sickenberger, 4806 North Ashland avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

If you were boosting Chicago to a stranger, what points would you discuss?

Where Asked.

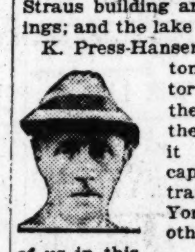
Washington street at Michigan avenue.

The Answers.

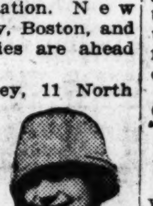
Mrs. Florence McConville, 1715 North Lorel avenue, Austin, housewife.—I believe I would be telling them about the places of entertainment and nice shows. There is something doing day and night. I just returned from a two months' vacation in Muskegon, Mich., and I appreciate these things.

Sol Gross, 1328 North Artesian avenue, clothing salesman.—One couldn't overlook our wonderful theaters. The stadium in Grant Park is something new. The Straus building is only one of our many architectural wonders. Some remarks might be made about our doorless and lockless county jail.

Miss Eileen Flynn, 128 North Keeler avenue, secretary.—I'd have to see the person first. With an understanding person one might say we have no mayor, else we'd have a subway. We do have many fine shows; the Tribune Tower and the Straus building among our fine buildings; and the lake at all our doorsteps.



K. Press-Hansen, 58 East Washington street, tour director.—Chicago is one of the greatest cities in the United States, but it is greatly handicapped in the matter of transportation. New York City, Boston, and other cities are ahead of us in this.



Miss Josephine Heaney, 11 North Lavergne avenue, secretary.—O, my; our beautiful Michigan avenue—the Fifth avenue of Chicago—fairly lined with beautiful buildings and beautiful vistas. There is something seriously wrong with anyone who can't find inspiration in a trip along that drive.

Episcopalians to Settle Fate of Obey in Marriage Service

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

The long debated question of the elimination of the word "obey" from the marriage ceremony in the Episcopal church will be settled at the general convention which convenes in New Orleans Oct. 7. This is the first general convention to meet in the far south.

BISHOP C. P. ANDERSON.
[Gibson, Sykes & Fowler Photo.]

All discussions concerning the attitude of the church on this and other questions of the ritual, the elimination of the words, "with my worldly goods I thee endow," "in the time of man's innocency," and "who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" have been tentative. The action taken at New Orleans will be final.

Other changes recommended but in debate are the shortening of the Ten Commandments and the elimination of the provision which forbids the burial by church rites of the unbaptized, the ex-communicated and suicides.

One radical change in administration has been ordered. The presiding bishop for the next six years will be elected by the house of bishops, with the concurrence of the house of deputies. The purpose, it is understood, is to elect a bishop in the prime of life instead of following the order of seniority, as the practice has been for 140 years.

Other questions of wide importance will be voting on membership in the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, which was defeated three years ago by one-half of one vote; extending the powers of the provinces, ordaining of women as deaconesses, Christian unity, enlarging the duties of laymen, place of healing in the church, prohibition, church music, and the trial of Bishop William Montgomery Brown, whose deposition from the episcopacy has been ordered by a trial commission, but is still being fought by Bishop Brown and certain of his friends.

THEATER

"TELL ME MORE!"

Song-play, in two acts, by Fred Thompson, William K. Wells, B. G. De Sylva, Ira Gershwin, and George Gershwin: made known in Chicago (by Edward D. Smith) September 20, 1925, in the Selwyn Theater, with this cast:

Monty Sipkin	Lou Holtz
Peggy Van De Leur	Mabel Withee
Billy, her brother	Frank Sinclair
Dennison	Gerald Gilbert
Bonnie	Emma Haig
Jane Wallace	Rena Parker
Her mother	Maud Andrew
Mr. Wallace	Donald Hall
Fifi	Hope Vernon
Cerise	Eugene Redding

There isn't much more to tell. The new matter in the Selwyn is just another: it runs fairly well to the minor average, being better than some, and not so good as others; and there isn't any use in saying which. . . . The most interesting of the things that go to make up "Tell Me More!" is George Gershwin's music; and it is interesting because it furnishes new (and unnecessary) proof that jazz, refine it as you may, is a process, and is not a product, and that you must have good tunes before you may have good jazz. When Mr. Gershwin evolves a good tune, he makes the jazz he applies to it seem to be its essence and its fabric; and, when Mr. Gershwin works with a sparkless tune, his jazz is no more effective than that of any casual journeyman with a sense of syncope. He has a fairish tune or two in this score, but none that is a stand-out.

The tale is one of those things that are hung on somebody whose name is something else calling himself Smith, and then having entrances and exits arranged to keep him from meeting anybody who knows his name isn't Smith. Stir slowly till it comes to a cool boil, and then signal the girls to come on for the finale. . . . Such variant as there is in this piece has Mr. Holtz performing as a salesman of women's hats who pretends in white-face to be the fellow who pretends that he is Smith. When a Negro waiter leaves the hotel wherein Mr. Holtz has run up a bill he is unable to meet, he is told to take the waiter's place, so that he may black up and sing "Sola Mia." He doesn't black up, thereby thrilling his adulants, and sings "Sola Mia" until he has used up all the 1924 nifties not previously used by him in the dialogue of his rôle. Otherwise, Mr. Holtz' equipment runs largely to the small-talk of Manhattan sagacity and sophistication, with frequent recourse to the Pollak accent—sometimes on purpose.

The audience liked Mr. Holtz, save when it knew the answers to his riddles before he got that far; and it liked Miss Haig when she danced, and Miss Vernon when she gave imitations of something, and the expert Charleston hoofing of two Negro boys. . . . It was all rather so-so and everyday, however; and its measure as entertainment is the measure in which the populace cares for Mr. Holtz when he isn't singing "Sola Mia."

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News.

Horace B. Liveright, of Boni & Liveright, is to have a try at "Hamlet" with nowadays clothes et-cætera; and that is interesting. He says he will have Basil Sydney as Hamlet; and that doesn't sound so good. Mr. Liveright begs us to know that his venture is not to be regarded as a stunt, but is based on a high regard for art; and, bless his heart! we know that without his telling it. . . . And he's to have "a committee of prominent authors and dramatists to serve as sponsors, in coöperation with a committee of Shaksperean scholars," and already has "acceptances" from Eugene O'Neill, Miss Zona Gale, and Ludwig Lewisohn, although he doesn't explain what they know about "Hamlet" or Shakspere.

Matter in Octavus Roy Cohen's stories has been made into the libretto of a song-play named "Too Bad!"

Historic Films Draw Large Crowd at Field Museum

The first of the series of historic films to be exhibited at the Field museum drew a crowd yesterday afternoon that twice filled the James Simpson theater, the majority of those present being children. Two performances were held, the first at 2:30 and the second at 4 o'clock. The initial program of the series depicted Columbus at the courts of King John II of Portugal and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain, and his landing in America in 1492. The pictures are being shown every Sunday afternoon in September and October, as part of an Americanization program of the museum.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

Dorsey C. Barrett, mentioned in THE TRIBUNE last Saturday as manager of Henry L. Doherty & Co., investment bankers, was employed by that firm only as a straight commission salesman.

Norse, Germans Celebrate Deeds of Their Races

Programs Staged at Pier and Soldier Field.

Americans of German and Norse extraction yesterday held race proud celebrations of the contributions of their people to the upbuilding of the United States.

The Norwegians made of the day a colorful festival, centering around the discovery of the American continent by Leif Erickson, "Leif the Lucky," 500 years before Columbus executed the commission of Queen Isabella by landing on these shores.

The Germans paraded along Michigan avenue to Soldier field, where they listened to a set of speeches in which their many and varied achievements toward the development of this country were extolled.

Lincoln park and the Municipal pier, and Lake Shore drive between, were the locale of the Norwegian celebration. Bright costumes of old Norway lent the gala touch. Music and speeches, folk songs, and graceful native dances, sports on land and yacht races on the lake comprised the program.

Thirty thousand Germans came together in the stadium for their gathering. An attendance of the same number of Norwegians had been expected, not alone from Chicago but from all over Illinois, and the estimates of leaders were that thousands more than that number had come.

With Capt. A. F. W. Seibel as grand marshal and Capt. George F. Weideling, warden of the county jail, as chief of staff, the German organizations gathered at Adams street for the parade down the boulevard. At the stadium, a flag salute of 21 guns, fired from an American gun which had seen service in France, was given by Battery F of the 124th Field Artillery commanded by Capt. A. J. Bradley.

A massed chorus of 1,500 voices directed by Karl Reckzeh sang. German turnvereins gave exhibitions of gymnastics, and a 100 piece band conducted by Martin Ballmann and Fred Rothe furnished music. THE TRIBUNE Camp Algonquin and free ice funds, the Daily News fresh air fund, and other charities will benefit from the money received from admissions.

Enthusiastic approval greeted the speech of Prof. Philip S. Allen of the Germanic department of the University of Chicago, in which he advocated the erection by the Germans of the city of an art museum and library of typical German architecture to replace the old German building of the world's fair, now being razed in Jackson park.

Mayor Dever on the speakers' stand lauded the qualities of the German people as citizens which had enabled them to accomplish much in the development of Chicago.

Thousands could not get into the Municipal pier to hear the speeches for the Norwegians there. Mayor Dever was a speaker before citizens of that blood also. Fine and industrious, peace loving yet hard fighting, he termed them, and declared their achievements in this country had left an everlasting mark of honor.

Preceding the gathering at the pier, the celebrants had marched down Lake Shore drive from Lincoln park, a hundred bands playing, the blue crossed red and white banner of Norway and the brilliance of Old Glory side by side. Many, men and women, marched in native costume and the uniforms of lodge members added another bright touch.

After the speeches, the water races took place, and the evening of "Eric the Red" drew to a close with the singing of folk songs from a lighted Viking barge by a chorus of 200.

New England Church to Have Homecoming

The New England Congregational church, Dearborn avenue and Delaware place, is planning to put on an advanced program with the $300,000 fund left to the church by the late Victor F. Lawson. The church will have a loyalty and home coming service next Sunday and on the following Sunday a memorial service for Mr. Lawson. On each of the two Sunday evenings religious pageants will be given. On Friday evening, Oct. 2, there will be a public reception. The Chicago Congregational association will have its next meeting there.

Theory That Men Like Girls Who Can Cook Is Disputed

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Let them rave on, Miss Blake, about wanting girls who can cook," advises one who can turn out a pie that would melt in the mouth, "but don't believe a word they say. Men want them ornamental and useless! Take it from one who knows whereof she speaks!"

Dale's protest was inspired by the plaint of a male who maintains there are no girls left who can cook.

"Well, I am a girl, and not a bad looker, either, if I am to believe the charitable things my friends say about me," Dale protests. "Two years ago my dear mother died, and ever since I have been keeping house. That means in my case taking care of a twelve room house, cooking, washing, and ironing for five adults. I might add that we have a guest room which is much overworked. I do every bit of the work myself, including varnishing floors, canning and pickling in season, and sewing on my own clothes.

"Two years ago I knew little about cooking, but I know more now. I had learned a little at school and a little from my mother. The rest I learned by experience, with the help of cook books, newspaper articles, magazines, and radio recipes.

"Girls who work in offices cannot be expected to know much about cooking. It was a different story in the so-called 'good old days,' when the men in the family were the wage earners and the fair daughter had nothing to do but embroider doilies and bake cakes. It takes brains and common sense to hold down a position in the business world, and a girl who has been a success at that will be just as great a success as wife and mother.

"But who wants a girl who knows how to cook? There is no army of eligible men pounding on my front door. No one is needed to order the line to form to the right.

"The only way I can make an impression on members of that ornery sex that says one thing and means another is to forget I have a speaking acquaintance with the dishpan and the scrubbing brush, put on a lot of lip rouge, shine up my finger nails, try to look ornamental, and above all things avoid looking useful.

"I made a horrible faux pas here one evening. I accidentally let slip something about doing the dishes, and my beautiful sheik said, 'Lord, you don't wash the dishes?'

"'No,' I answered quickly, for fear the deadly news would get out, 'I was just giving the maid a helping hand.' As I was the maid myself, it was no lie."

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

"Dear Miss Blake: I am seventeen and have known a boy for twelve years. My folks moved about six years ago from the neighborhood. I see him two or three times a year. We are bashful when we see each other. Please tell me how to get over this. SUE."

Why so bashful, Sue, when you have known him for such a long time? Act toward him just as you did when you were neighbors. Instead of being your own natural self, you're wondering what you should do and say—and that spoils everything, dear. Be natural and friendly, and he'll do likewise.

Judged Without Trial.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am sixteen and in love with a girl the same age. Lately talk has been going around that I have said things about her and her friends. Since then she and the rest of them refuse to recognize me. Is there any way I can show my innocence? "R. W. G."

It's rather hard to be judged without being given a chance to defend yourself, isn't it, R. W. G.? Not so complimentary, I'll agree. In order to square yourself and prove your innocence, tell them you'll meet your accusers any time they say.

Town Duties Beckon Vacation Sojourners Back to Hearthsides

BY NANCY R——.

Even the best of vacations must come to an end, when "fox days," those warm lingering remnants of summer, dart in and out of existence and town duties beckon.

Bishop and Mrs. Charles P. Anderson, who, with their two daughters, Katherine and Nancy, have been up in the Wisconsin woods for several months, have had to cut short their usually long visit there because the bishop must come back to Chicago and then go on to New Orleans for the general convention of the Episcopal church to be held the week of Oct. 7.

So yesterday they closed their house on Long lake, a rambling, roomy log cabin set in the heart of a grove of tall pine, maple and birch woods, overlooking the gleaming lake and just at the edge of Hazen's Long lake resort, and reluctantly started homeward.

Bishop and Mrs. Anderson are enthusiastic woodsmen, and spend much time each year in Wisconsin, the bishop slipping in several extra weeks each spring to go up to help with the making of the maple sugar.

Across the trail from the popular and hospitable Anderson lodge, with its large living room, open fires, broad verandas and many sleeping rooms, is the little chapel, its cross almost lost in the trees and its big fireplace facing the altar, built for the bishop by the regular visitors at Hazen's. It will seat from fifty to sixty persons, and during the summer and early fall season the bishop holds two services every Sunday morning. On Sunday afternoons he umpires the baseball games played on "Pat Anderson field," named for the Andersons' son, who spent most of his growing-up summers at Long lake, and who was killed in the aviation service during the world war.

Day's News in Society

No fuss and feathers will attend the marriage service of Miss Margaret MacCaughey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey of 232 East Walton place, and Harry A. Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus C. Allen of Glencoe. The service is to be read at the MacCaughey residence on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 3. Only the immediate families are to be present. Miss Mary MacCaughey will be maid of honor for her sister, and Mr. Allen will have his cousin, Taylor B. Ward of Evanston, as his best man. After Nov. 1, Mr. Allen and his bride will reside at 816 Michigan avenue, Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowman C. Lingle of 2205 Commonwealth avenue and their son, Kendall Lingle, have returned from their summer camp near Traverse City, Mich. Kendall will depart early in October for the Berkshire school.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley H. Barrows and daughters, Marcia and Louise, have returned to the Lake Shore Drive hotel after several months in California.

Mrs. Frank Townley Brown had as her guests over the week-end at Brooklynwood, her country estate, Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Hamilton and her brother, Thomas Marshall Glasgow of Virginia. Mrs. Brown will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton when they depart today for New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. have as their guests at Castle Hill, their estate at Ipswich, Mass., Mr. Crane's sister, Mrs. D. C. Chadbourne of New York City, and Miss Ellen La Motte, a writer.

Mrs. William H. Moore has returned to her place at Pride's Crossing after visiting friends in Lake Forest, where she formerly resided.

Mrs. William Ernest Walker and her debutante daughter, Miss Edith Walker, have returned from a year's study in Europe and are at the Lake Shore Drive hotel.

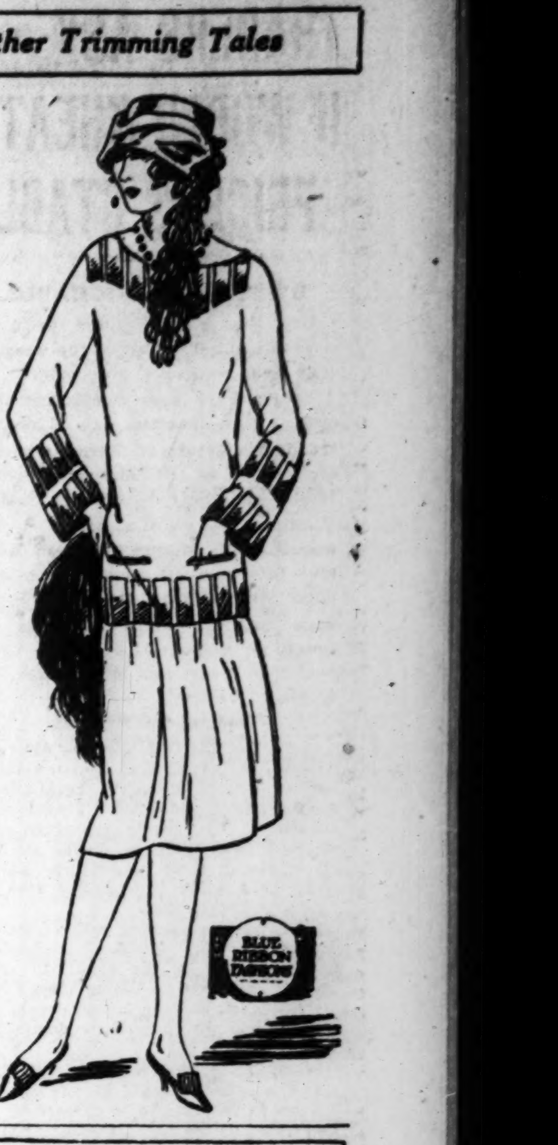
Again We Relate Leather Trimming Tales

by Corinne Lowe



NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—Fashion is certainly a leather bound volume this autumn. Look north or south, east or west, and you are likely to see some touch of leather. For example, there are some new evening slippers designed by Perugia which come in high tones of velvet and which are embellished by motifs of metallic kid. Hats often succumb to the same influence and, as for wraps and frocks, we have already indicated how wide is the service of this type of trimming where they are concerned. No, we have as yet no leather stocking tales to relate, but if the craze continues even this last reserve may be overcome.

Sometimes the leather trimming is just a hint. For example, a narrow belt—and this, too, one which encircles only part of the waist—may be the single expression of this mode. On other occasions, however, the leather binding is more assertive. Today's model of black wool crepella from the celebrated French designer, Chantal, is an instance of this latter treatment. For here bands of silver leather shading into white are applied as yoke, sleeve finish, and as a boundary for the waist line. Incidentally, this charming tailored model is not really a jumper style. It merely simulates that mode.

And, by the way, here is another testimony to the truth of what I said yesterday about the black frock of today being nearly always relieved by some touch of metal. The hat accompanying this frock is one of the graceful draped affairs of velvet which promise a new era in millinery. It is set off by loops of black and white silk floss. This model is from Nicole de Paris.

Let Dentist Have Last Word About Tooth Extraction

by Antoinette Donnelly

A story is told of a woman who visited one of those unethical dental parlors where she was told she had pyorrhea and had better have her teeth pulled out. She loved her teeth, though she had neglected them, so before parting with them she had the wisdom to take herself to a reputable dentist. He recommended a course of treatments, and not a single tooth had to be pulled.

A few years ago there was a wave of promiscuous teeth pulling. I trust there is not another epidemic of it.

In the first place, with tools that are as invaluable to health as one's molars, a good dentist is first consideration. A reputable man does not dream of removing a tooth until it is absolutely beyond redemption.

An X-ray man has absolutely no right to dictate on the drawing of teeth. Neither has a physician. Nor an oculist. Nor representatives of any of the other professions whose problems may be solved through the possible teeth troubles. The dentist is the only one with the clinical and mechanical experience to decide. And you will find none of the men who are reputable and responsible in the other professions advocating promiscuous teeth removal.

Even serious cases of pyorrhea may be checked and teeth saved by careful treatment. Of course, there are instances where it is absolutely necessary to remove a tooth or teeth. Only when a man in the profession who is a conscientious worker advocates extraction may one know she is doing the right thing.

Losing teeth is a tragedy to be averted by early and constant care. You cannot duplicate them in usefulness or appearance. So, before parting with a single molar, every means of preservation should be exhausted.

Where most people get their fright is from the dark spots revealed on the X-ray plates. They do not mean, however, that the tooth must come out. Treatment from a simple administration to long and careful effort on the part of the dentist, according to the period of neglect, is the thing to consider.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

MRS. Z. Y.: THE HARD CHEESY deposits you mention are whiteheads. They are an imprisoned blackhead, protected from the surface dirt. Apply hot cloths to soften the skin, prick with a sterilized needle, and press out the contents. Wipe the spot with peroxide, and massage gently with a skin food.

MRS. Q.: WHEN DIETING THE hunger pangs may be chased away with a drink of water. You should drink plenty of water while dieting, as water dissolves and carries out of the body a large amount of the broken down material resulting from diet and exercise. It helps to regulate the kidneys and the digestive tract.

MEN'S FASHIONS

BY A. T. GALLICO.

Narrow Lines Are New.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Yes, indeed, topcoats are longer this season, but, remember, you of the not too tall build, who wish to look like the ideal tall figure which this season is fashionable, and also wish to wear the longer coat that style has decreed, these coats are also tubular in effect, which is the saving grace that keeps them from making you look squatty and even shorter than you really are.

For the tendency of a long coat is to shorten the figure, by making the body appear long and the legs short. This is true in the case of the perfectly straight up and down coats, and of those which have a flare to the skirt. But these new coats, with the silhouette of broad shoulders, and narrowing over the hips, with narrow lines down to the bottom of the coat, can afford to be longer than the other types of coat, and are successfully worn by the short man.

Here are some outfits I have seen lately that have been attractively thought out in the color way. One consisted of a suit of the new shade of brown—bracken—a shirt of light brown and white stripes, and a striped tie of dark red and two shades of green. The hat was cocoa brown.

Another costume was made up of a medium gray suit with a faint overplaid of green, a shirt of green and white stripes, a tie of plain green silk, and a hat of light gray.

A dark blue suit was combined with a blue shirt with white striping, and a blue and white Spitalfields four-in-hand tie. The hat worn was a derby, while tan oxfords with buff spats finished the other end of the ensemble.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Fall Melons.

Casaba melon, peeled and diced, and served with a salad dressing separately makes not only one of the most fragrant but also one of the most refreshing of salads. Perhaps you will like the French dressing best—one freshly mixed—but a well thinned mayonnaise is good. The reason for serving the dressing separately is that the melon is most effective when it has been freshly cut up and set under the nose of the eater so that he may get the full benefit of its aroma. Even when it is served with fruits, as it may be, it is best to do the same thing. Foods of delightful aromas, which are made the most of, may be a fine whip for the digestion.

Even when such care is not used in serving the melon, it is good as a substitute for cucumber in almost salad use, while the green outer flesh cooked in a thick sirup makes an excellent candy.

To prepare the melon for salad, cut it in quarters or eighths and these pieces in halves. Then cut out the inner half of the flesh on the easily visible line between the softer inner part and the harder greener outer part. Then cut this soft part in nice pieces just before it is to be served. Its fine aroma can be destroyed if it is not kept in fresh and pure air; when it is not, there is no use in trying to have the eater profit by its odor. One of the reasons why it may lose this odor is because it is left too long in excelsior. Perhaps all growers do not pack it in this material, but have found some better way.

Unfortunate.

I was invited to a friend's house for dinner. Just recently I had become acquainted with her. She was refined and from a wealthy family. I, therefore, wished to make a good impression on her.

I said just before dinner, while we were saying all our likes and dislikes, that I just hated home made salad dressing, and I detested warm potato salad.

A look of astonishment came over her face, and we were then called to dinner. I started to eat. The first thing I tasted was hot potato salad with warm dressing.

I have not seen my friend since that night. R. D.

TRADERS ASK IF WORLD WHEAT PRICE IS STABLE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Has the world's wheat price become stabilized? That is the question that now confronts the trade.

Values have been fluctuating in a most erratic manner, but no definite trend has developed during the last six weeks. At the close on Saturday, December wheat in Chicago and in Winnipeg was off 2c as compared with September 1, Minneapolis 2¾c lower, and Liverpool off 2⅜c. When compared with July 31, December in Chicago Saturday night was only ⅛c lower, Winnipeg 3¼c lower, Liverpool 1⅛c lower, and Minneapolis 2¼c higher.

Traders Are Mystified.

In view of the fact that the American winter and spring wheat crop movements had so little effect on the world's level, and Liverpool, which reflects world-wide conditions, has shown relatively more strength than Winnipeg during the last six weeks, it is not surprising that the trade as a whole is mystified over the action of the market.

Speculative influences, while causing numerous minor advances or declines, have in view of the relatively small price changes had no lasting effect on the world's level, and the law of supply and demand has proven itself the dominating factor.

Whether the world's market can withstand another assault in the way of the heavy pressure to be exerted by the movement of the new Canadian crop remains to be seen. A majority of foreign, American, and Canadian traders are under the impression that it cannot, and look for lower prices. There is no pressure on the world's market of American wheat other than durum, which is likewise the cheapest in the world, in direct opposition to the fact that American springs and winter bread wheat is the highest.

Predicts Russian Exports.

On Aug. 6 Broomhall estimated that Russia would ship 40,000,000 bu of wheat and other estimates ranged up to 80,000,000 bu. Italy is reported to have taken 25,000,000 bu Russian wheat and France 5,000,000 bu. Foreigners, however, overstepped themselves in trying to create the impression that the supply of Russian grain was almost unlimited.

While American and world's wheat futures markets have been relatively steady, premiums in the United States have advanced. At the close of the week there was evidence as the trade sees it that the high premiums for American springs would shortly result in Canadian wheat flowing into this country, despite the tariff wall, practically marking the elimination of the upturn in domestic spring wheat, unless the world's price level should rise.

As compared with the close of a week ago prices here Saturday were 1@1⅛c higher, with December leading. September closed at $1.50½@1.50⅜, December at $1.50⅝@1.50½, and May at $1.53⅛@1.53¼. Range of prices follow:

Corn Lowest of Season.

Corn prices have been on the down grade for seven straight days, with September and December selling at the lowest figures of the crop, the expected demand for old cash corn failing to develop, and there has been a growing belief on the part of the trade that the recent estimated loss in the new crop, due to extreme heat and drought late in July and early in September, was exaggerated. This has been reflected in lower prices.

Futures closed 4@8c lower as compared with the previous week, with September leading. The latter finished at 88¼@88c, December at 80¼@80⅜, and May at 84⅝@84¾c. Range of prices follow:

Oats Lower with Corn.

Break in corn was the main bearish influence in oats, combined with the limited speculative interest, which is also a factor in wheat and corn. The oats market is regarded as blanketed at the present time by the weight of the cash grain hedged in the pit, and the speculative interest is not sufficiently large to advance prices. Oats specialists are inclined to look for a slow market for several months to come.

September oats Saturday closed at 37⅞c, December at 40⅝c, and May at 44⅞@45c, showing net losses of 1@1½c for the week, the latter on September. Range of prices follows:

Better Call for Meats.

All deliveries of rye sold at a new low on the crop the last week and closed about the bottom, with net losses of 5⅜@6⅝c as compared with the preceding week, September being 84c, December 88⅝c, and May 93c. Export demand continues extremely slow, but there is only moderate hedging pressure.

Provision market was decidedly unsettled the last week, liquidation being on at times, but toward the last a better domestic demand for lard and meats, especially the latter, brought in fairly aggressive buying, and the finish was at the top on meats, with ribs 5@25c higher and bellies 25c higher to 45c lower, as compared with the previous week. Lard was 20c higher to 17½c lower, the break in corn affecting the deferred delivery. Prices follow:

WHEN BUSINESS LAGS ADVERTISE, SCRUTATOR SAYS

BY SCRUTATOR.

The wisdom of advertising intensively in times of industrial depression recently has been vindicated by the report of the National Bureau of Economic Research.

That report shows that although the total income of the American people dropped from 74 in 1920 to nearly 63 billions of dollars in 1921, the purchasing power of the people hardly decreased at all. Owing to lower prices in 1921, the income of the depression year was in purchasing power only about $100,000,000 below that of the year previous.

What happened was a switch of buying power from some groups to others. Under such circumstances the wisdom of a vigorous advertising campaign—a pursuit of the new purchasing power in new hands is obvious. Those newspapers which promised good returns to advertisers in 1921 delivered the goods, and thus by stimulating buying among those who are increasingly able to buy they helped to shorten the period of depression.

Any fall in prices, of course, places increased purchasing power in the hands of those with fixed incomes from investments and in the hands of that overwhelming proportion of wage earners who keep their jobs and suffer no great diminution in wages.

That the fall of prices in 1921 hit the receivers of big incomes hard is shown by the income tax returns of that year as compared to those of 1920. People with incomes which come within the income tax limits suffered a drop of a little over four billion dollars, as compared to a total money decline in national income of $11,000,000,000. In other words, the one-sixth of those gainfully employed who pay income tax suffered a loss of over a third of the total decrease in money income for the nation as a whole.

The theory that rich men benefit from industrial depressions is as untenable as the crazy idea that war helps the rich. Both absurdities, however, are believed devoutly by millions.

It is interesting to speculate on when, if ever, the present trend toward rising prices for agricultural products again will place the farmers in receipt of as large a percentage of the national income as they were getting prior to the last depression. Labor showed great power in resisting deflation after 1920. Will it be able to force wages up to keep pace with the rising prices on the farm?

The Sun

Leads All New York Evening Newspapers

IN August, as in July of this year, the New York Sun published a larger volume of advertising than any other New York evening newspaper.

The Sun published in August 826,146 lines of high class advertising. This is 62,326 lines more than was published in any other New York evening newspaper.

The Sun gained 194,940 lines of advertising in August of this year compared with August of last year, which is a greater gain than the aggregate gain of all other New York evening newspapers.

Moreover, The Sun with its gain of 194,940 lines for August over August last year made a much greater gain than any one of the New York morning newspapers in week-day issues.

For merchants and manufacturers alike, The Sun is the greatest selling force in the New York market.

The preference that advertisers show for The Sun is based on The Sun's ability to produce satisfactory results—which is due, in turn, to a large, high-class and unusually responsive circulation.

TRAVELERS GIVE PULLMAN CO. ITS BEST EARNINGS

BY O. A. MATHER.

In periods of prosperity, Americans travel extensively and luxuriously. This is proved by the history of the Pullman company, which operates the bulk of sleeping cars in this country. And the fact that the last year has been a prosperous period is shown by the fact that the company had the biggest year in its fifty years' history.

During the year ended July 31, a total of 34,515,265 revenue passengers traveled 13,422,311,583 miles in Pullman cars and paid about $125,000,000 for such accommodations. Of that amount, the Pullman company received $83,927,749, and the balance went to the railroads in the form of surcharge on Pullman tickets. In addition, the Pullman company paid the railroads $8,575,388, and spent $65,970,955 in conducting its service. Therefore, its net return from the sleeping car business was $9,381,406.

$6,390,570 Other Revenue.

In addition to sleeping car revenue, the Pullman company received $6,390,570 from other sources. Net income, after all charges and setting aside $2,000,000 in reserves, was $13,771,976, equivalent to $10.20 a share on its $135,000,000 capital stock. But the Pullman company owns all the $50,000,000 capital stock of the Pullman Car and Manufacturing corporation, to which the manufacturing end of the business was turned over May 31, 1924.

Good Manufacturing Profits.

That subsidiary last year paid dividends of 6 per cent, although its net income was $6,816,996. Therefore, its undistributed earnings were $3,816,988, which accrue to the Pullman company, and were equivalent to $2.82 a share on Pullman stock. On this basis the parent company's actual earnings would be $13.02 a share. Net income for the previous fiscal year was $13,603,063, or $10.07 a share. After paying 8 per cent on its stock last year, the Pullman company had a surplus of $3,033,104, bringing total surplus to $29,720,579.

The conservatism and strong condition of the Pullman company is evidenced by several items in its balance sheet. The $50,000,000 capital stock of its subsidiary is carried at $36,779,964, on which basis last year's earnings figure more than 18½ per cent. Its 8,510 cars are carried at a net value of $102,942,614, or a little over $12,000 a car.

Current Assets $41,500,000.

Current assets on July 31, last, totaled more than $41,500,000, of which $25,237,668 was cash and government bonds. Current liabilities were $22,446,000. Reserves aggregated $8,038,366, not including various depreciation reserves aggregating more than $83,000,000. Total assets were $195,225,626.

YANKEE ACTIONS AFFECT LONDON STOCK MARKET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The two high spots on the London market this week both were directly attributable to American sources.

The first was the position of the Austin Motors after the General Motors' bid was refused. The offer since has been withdrawn. A good many shareholders of the Austin company—one of the largest automobile concerns in England—believe that the offer of new capital from America should have been accepted. The annual meeting of the company's directors will be held on Tuesday, when a big fight is expected.

The second big market sensation wherein America featured was the continued rubber boom. Professional observers say America's demand for rubber is unlimited. Prices advanced again this week with the renewed rush of business. Hundreds of fortunes have been made on the rubber market of London already this year. The men who got into the boom at the beginning are now millionaires and the flood of wealth is showing no signs of abating.

Oil circles in London have not yet had time to find the key to the reported American financial deal with Persia, the first intimation of which reached here Saturday. If it is true that American banking and industrial interests are ready to put up money to build a Trans-Persian railway to serve all central Asia it easily might mean strenuous efforts toward the completion of the Bagdad railway.

Your Personal Bank

THE young man starting out to make a creditable place for himself in the community and a success in business naturally will have, if he reaches his goal, connections with one or more banking institutions. One of his first connections will probably be in the nature of a savings account. Next he will want a checking account. Then he makes a small investment. Next he needs a safe deposit box. Then he makes more investments. He establishes a trust and makes a will. Later he may wish to have the bank look after some of his affairs and ultimately take charge of his estate.

For over forty years this Organization has been making a specialty of giving personal banking service to a continually increasing number of people who have been building up a competence for themselves and their families.

By personal service we mean the attention which our officers personally give to the business of our individual clients. Our other clients, such as large corporations and business enterprises, expect and receive every commercial banking facility and particularly a genuine personal interest in their success, but the individual has many personal matters that are different from large corporation affairs and should be handled differently, but just as efficiently.

By starting a connection with the Harris Trust & Savings Bank all these matters can be taken care of intelligently. The customer will have the same people whom he knows and who are familiar with his private business affairs continue to look after them under such instructions as he may leave after he has gone. These officers have grown up in the business, are interested in giving such advice and assistance as will aid in making it possible to establish a competence, to keep it, and to see that every protection surrounds its final disposition.

The New York Times.

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—In the past experience of Wall street there have been two kinds of bull stock markets of spectacular character.

One of them is marked by a general and fairly uniform advance in prices for shares of all producing and distributing companies. That usually has accompanied the coming into sight of a robust nation-wide trade revival.

The stock exchange movement in such famous Wall street years as 1915, 1905, and 1899 was distinctly of that character; so was the notable rise in stocks which occurred in the summer of 1924, when the world's grain production situation turned so dramatically in this country's favor.

Capitalizing Financial Optimism.

The other description of bull market movements commonly occurs not at the beginning, but in the later stages of the business boom. Its cause is always the same; it results from the capitalizing by professional Wall street speculators and by adventurous financiers whom the rise in stocks and the larger company earnings have enriched, of the enthusiasm and excitement which the sight of tangible prosperity instills into the minds of the speculative outside public.

Appealing as such a movement of prices does to imagination rather than sober business judgment, it practically never affects the stock market uniformly and as a whole.

Therefore a bull movement of that character converges either on shares of companies whose prospects and earning power are little known, which may be new experiments, or which practically are controlled by the very individuals engaged in making prices for the stocks. The stock exchange movement of November, 1919, and the spring of 1920, when the Stutz Motor corner was only one typical instance of the market's character, was clearly of that sort. Such in its later stages was the extravagant stock exchange advance in 1916, and so perhaps more conspicuously than in any stock market of the past generation, was the utterly reckless manipulative movement of 1902.

Some Historic Bull Markets.

There hardly will be any dispute as to the category in which the recent stock market belongs. That makes it interesting to inquire when and how the older markets of the sort discovered that they had run their course. It depended on the extent to which the speculative public was infatuated. Such markets usually were brought to a finish along with a sudden rise in the stock exchange call money market, whose facilities the manipulators had abused. It was the rise in call money to 15 per cent in October and 30 per cent in November which signalized the collapse of the stock exchange boom in 1919.

There was always some incident in the news which made the outside public stop and think, with the result the sudden discovery that the market was merely an inverted pyramid, in which "professionals" had been buying only to sell to "outsiders," and outsiders only to sell to one another, and which consequently had no support whatever when both sorts of buyers took fright.

Recollections of this nature ought to help the answer to the argument, familiar nowadays, that this is an inflation market, and that therefore the rise in prices is beyond the control of serious financiers or even of unexpected accident. No illusion could be more complete.

Seaboard Air Line Railway.

C. J. K., Evanston, Ill.—The Seaboard Air Line railway system directly operates 3,789 miles of railroad (exclusive of 441 miles of subsidiary companies), extending from Richmond, Va., through the south Atlantic states. It is issuing $10,000,000 first and consolidated mortgage 6 per cent bonds, series A, making a total of $37,767,500 series A bonds now outstanding in the hands of the public and upwards of $20,000,000 pledged with the United States government or in the company's treasury. These bonds are a direct obligation of the company and are secured by a direct first mortgage lien on about 442 miles of railroad, and by pledge of certain securities, including [illegible] refunding mortgage bonds out of a total of $68,229,000 issued. No additional bonds (other than first and consolidated mortgage bonds) secured by any existing mortgage lien on any of the company's property may be issued except refunding mortgage bonds, which must be pledged under the first and consolidated mortgages. Total income applicable to interest on the funded debt for 1924 amounted to $9,933,490, or over 1½ times the fixed interest charges of $6,[illegible] for that year. Net railway operating income for the first seven months of 1925 was 9.4 per cent greater than for the period in 1924. Additional lines are being built in Florida, which should augment earnings. These notes are a suitable investment for a business man's surplus funds.

Federated Utilities, Incorporated

First Mortgage Collateral Gold Bonds, Series A 6%

Dated September 1, 1925. Due September 1, 1945. Interest payable semi-annually March 1 and September 1, at the First Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, Illinois. Coupon bonds in interchangeable denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000, with privilege of registration as to principal. Redeemable in whole or in part on any interest date on sixty days' notice as follows: On or before September 1, 1930, at 105 and accrued interest; thereafter at ½ of 1% less for each succeeding year or part thereof, to and including September 1, 1936, and thereafter at 102 and accrued interest. The Company agrees to pay interest without deduction for any Federal Income Tax not exceeding 2%, which the Company or Trustee may be required or permitted to pay at the source.

From his letter to us, Mr. Fred W. Seymour, President of the Federated Utilities, Incorporated, has summarized as follows:

BUSINESS AND PROPERTY: The Company owns all of the outstanding bonds and the entire outstanding common stocks, except Directors' qualifying shares, of the Michigan Federated Utilities and the Palm Beach Gas Company, and in addition thereto, all the capital stock, except Directors' qualifying shares, of three subsidiaries in Indiana and Georgia and over 90% of the capital stock of the Consumers Gas & Coke Company of Waycross, Georgia, all of which properties will presently be placed under this mortgage.

The Company's subsidiaries now under this mortgage serve a population of over 110,000, which will be increased to about 160,000 by including the new subsidiaries in Indiana and Georgia. Artificial gas is furnished to eleven communities in the State of Michigan in what is known as the Michigan Industrial Belt and to Palm Beach and West Palm Beach, Florida. There are six gas plants in the State of Michigan, all of which manufacture either coal gas or both coal and water gas. The Palm Beach Gas Plant manufactures water gas only.

The communities served by the Michigan subsidiary are Owosso, Corunna, Marshall, Alpena, Sault Ste. Marie, Plymouth, Northville and Alma. (Ithaca, St. Louis and Breckenridge are served through high pressure mains from Alma.)

SECURITY: The First Mortgage Collateral Gold Bonds, of which there will be $1,000,000 outstanding upon the completion of this financing, are secured by pledge with the Trustee of First Mortgage Bonds of subsidiary corporations, those on the Michigan Federated Utilities having been approved by the Michigan Public Utilities Commission. The subsidiary bonds constitute the entire funded debt in aggregate principal amount equal to not less than 100% of the total amount of First Mortgage Collateral Gold Bonds outstanding and under the terms of the indenture this ratio must always be maintained. There are $1,350,000 of first mortgage bonds of the Michigan and Florida subsidiaries now authorized and owned by the Company. These First Mortgage Collateral Gold Bonds are further secured by pledge with the Trustee of the entire outstanding common stocks, except Directors' qualifying shares, of such subsidiary companies. In effect, therefore, the First Mortgage Collateral Gold Bonds are a first mortgage on the properties of the subsidiary companies.

EARNINGS: Consolidated net earnings of the Company and its subsidiaries now placed under this mortgage through pledge of collateral, for the twelve months ended July 31, 1925, available for interest, Federal Income Taxes, depreciation, etc., were over three times the annual interest requirements of these $1,000,000 First Mortgage Collateral Gold Bonds.

Current earnings due to improvement in operating efficiencies and rapid increase in customers are now showing substantial improvement in both gross and net, with every indication that consolidated net earnings for the calendar year 1925 will be in excess of three and one-half times interest requirements on the Series A bonds now being issued.

APPRAISAL VALUE OF PROPERTIES: The combined properties under this mortgage had a conservative present physical value as of September 1, 1925, after making liberal deductions for depreciation, of over $2,200,000.

All legal details in connection with the issue of bonds will be passed upon by Messrs. Travis, Merrick, Warner & Johnson of Grand Rapids, Michigan, for the Bankers and by Messrs. Mechem & Mechem of Battle Creek, Michigan, for the Company. The books and accounts have been audited by Arthur Andersen & Company, Accountants and Auditors, of Chicago. Appraisals of the subsidiary properties have been made by Messrs. Hagenah & Erickson of Chicago.

We offer these First Mortgage Collateral Gold Bonds, Series A 6%, if, as and when issued and received by us, subject to the approval of counsel.

BOND OFFERINGS FOR WEEK JUMP TO $111,000,000

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The expected autumn revival of activity in the field of new financing last week overshadowed the rather narrow and meaningless fluctuations of bond prices. The recent strengthening of the market for foreign bonds bore fruit in the form of several important new loans and the promise of others to come as soon as formal arrangements can be completed.

The week was marked by the sale of two large bond issues—$50,000,000 for the Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania and $25,000,000 for the German Rentenbank. Minor offerings brought the total of the week's new financing to $111,000,000, compared with $50,000,000 in the preceding week.
